Welcome to issue 14 of Outer Limits Magazine, in which I am extremely happy to welcome an article from Shawn M. Cohen an extremely talented practitioner and experienced Tarot reader, as we begin the first of a regular series of articles. I am over the moon to welcome an article from Peter Robbins who reminisces the 1978 U.N., attempt by Grenadian Prime Minister Sir Eric Gairy to initiate a serious study funded by the United Nations in to the ufo phenomena. I am hoping that this article shall be the first of many by Peter. I would also like to take this opportunity of thanking our former Canadian and North American correspondent James Borg for the past articles he provided, as he takes a break. I am extremely grateful that New York based Bryan M. Bowden shall be stepping in to James' shoes with his first article soon. As I write this we are now a little over 3 and a half months away from our first two day conference, featuring Colonel Charles Halt, Mary Rodwell, John Hanson, Paul Sinclair and myself. Ticket sales are going well, BUT those remaining months will soon pass by... GET YOUR TICKETS NOW DO NOT MISS WHAT COULD BE COL HALTS LAST TRIP TO THE UK FOR SOME TIME. # OLM Book Reviews

TITLE: Humanoid Encounters (The Others Amongst Us 1995-1999) AUTHOR: Albert S. Rosales PUBLISHER: Triangulum Publishing also CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. PRICE: £10.99. ISBN: 978151944 (available on Amazon)

We have UFOs, so it goes without saying we must have 'aliens'. UFO books are ten a penny but what are not ten a penny are books on their actual occupants, the entities, people, aliens, call them what you will, who pilot these strange craft. This book leans heavily on the occupants of these strange aerial devices which have been seen in our skies since time immemorial. If there is one thing that I got from this book is the vast enormity of different entities that have been seen across the world. I'm pretty sure that quite a lot of stories featured in this book are either,

False in the sense of mis reporting by people or people on drugs etc. or,

Totally made up in other words people just out to make a name for themselves. If but a few of the cases featured in this book are true then fine, that in itself is a worry.

It's fair to say that I am trying to get my head around how many different races are apparently visiting planet Earth it just seems incredible to me it really does and it would appear that each and every one of these races don't want to truly show their hand and come forward to the leaders of our planet, why? They are appearing to Joe Bloggs in woods and the like but won't appear in front of Presidents and Prime Ministers. What is their agenda? What is going on? Like I say, there are many different entities being seen some are hairy bipedal creatures very similar it must be said to sightings of Big Foot and Sasquatch. There are reports of what Albert relates to as, Ultra-Terrestrials, Extra-Terrestrials, Crypto-Terrestrials, Robots, Flying Humanoids, Werewolves and our lovely wee friend, the Chupacabra.

With each entity case, Albert provides the location, date and time of the sighting (but not always, due to insufficient evidence) Admittedly a lot of the cases featured in this book come from South America, there are very few cases coming from Great Britain but that in itself means nothing as you can only report on that you know! A lot of these cases seem laughable but how many times have I said that we shouldn't always laugh at something which on the surface looks ridiculous as many times that can turn out to be true, so I personally always refrain from pre judging something based solely on it's probably being false.

Some might say that this book is repetitive with its cases, well of course it is simply because it is what it is, a book based solely on providing the reader with case after case of strange alien encounters. This book is 'not' a novel, it is a compendium of bizarre and outlandish claims by startled witnesses of their sightings of creatures from goodness knows where. Not only do we have people relating their sightings of these bizarre creatures, but there are quite a few cases of people being taken aboard their craft and entertained by a visit to their home planet, (yes I know sounds fantastic) This of course is not the first book of its kind, there are others but admittedly not as much and the countless thousands of books on UFO sightings themselves. And of course what we read in this book may just be the tip of the iceberg, I'm pretty sure that there are many more such cases out there, not only that, there may be thousands of cases of people witnessing these bizarre creatures but keep it to themselves and we may never know the true and full picture of it all.

Albert therefore has collected hundreds of cases from around the world which I'm sure he would be the first to admit that he is taking them on face value. To complete a survey like this one would need to be a millionaire to go around the world and personally track down and interview face to face the people in this book (and who has that kind of money)? I was tempted to relate a few cases from this book here in this review but will refrain from doing so as its best that you buy a copy of this book and judge yourself the incredible diversity of the creatures involved. And of course, with the countless different species noted in this book, the question then arises from what planet do they come from, they can't all live on the same planet! If these cases are true and are not made up, figments of the imagination and the like, then either they come from a planet or another dimension (or is there something other!) And to come all this way just to pluck a few blades of grass from a meadow is downright ridiculous.

Yes we might not be ready to face another interstellar race based on the fact that we can't even get on with our own neighbours here on Earth, (look at North Korea, and the Middle East for instance) Would meeting another race of 'people' from another star system wreck our planet and destabilise what we Earthlings have produced and invented over the years? We have seen what the American Calvary did to the Indian Nation, that was the Indian's land, yet along comes the 7th Calvary (and more) and changed (dare I say wiped out) the Indian Nation and changed their way of life forever. Incredibly there are a few tribes in the jungles of South America which are being found today, and if we interact with them will we force our technology and ways upon them? Will they soon be drinking coca cola and listening and watching our radio and television broadcasts, I'm sure you see where I am going with this.

Anyway, in closing this review let me say this. Albert S. Rosales has done a wonderful job in presenting a range of pretty unusual encounters with so called 'aliens' from other worlds, I should also point out that this book is not a 'one off' from Albert, this is but one of a series of books written by Albert showing these encounters through the ages, from 1 A.D. to 1899, right through the 1930's 40's 50's 60's, straight through to present day, so I'm sure you get the picture, there are a hell of a lot of alien encounters out there. Yes a fascinating book, one which will stir the mind and one of which deserves to sit on your bookcase beside those other books on UFOs. You can't have one without the other. Buy it, read it, and open your mind.

Millions of people believe that advanced extra-terrestrial races have visited Earth, whether in recent or ancient times. Some suspect DNA was itself seeded onto this world or that human beings are the product of genetic engineering by galactic civilisations.

We won't be looking at modern visitations here, but we will offer a fresh perspective on the evidence for ancient astronauts. Anybody interested in whether aliens have visited this planet will know the names Zecharia Sitchin and Erich von Däniken. Not only have these two researchers sold millions of books, but their ideas form the basis for the extremely popular cable television show, Ancient Aliens. The fundamental core arguments offered by Sitchin and Von Däniken permeate through all discussions on the ancient astronaut subject.

Zecharia Sitchin argued that clay tablets left by the ancient Mesopotamian civilisations detailed a pre-historic extra-terrestrial visitation. According to Sitchin's translations of these tablets, 450,000 years ago rocket ships visited Earth from a planet called Nibiru located out on the fringes of our solar system.

These cosmic travellers came in search of gold, required for use in their technologies. The Nibiru-ite workers disliked the difficult work of mining and processing gold ore, leading to the expedition's scientists engineering a slave species. The genetic engineering involved splicing alien genes into the genome of the resident archaic hominids, Homo erectus. The result of this Nibiru-ite genetic engineering was the first Homo sapiens, a species that became self-determining once the aliens left our planet, 2500 years ago.

Erich von Däniken took a different direction with his search for evidence of ancient aliens, involving a laborious examination of ancient megalithic sites, artefacts and the legends. Von Däniken deduced that extra-terrestrial beings visited Earth during the latter part of the stone-age before the first complex cultures had formed. His stated position is that we can see the evidence for this relatively recent E.T. contact when we look at human religions and myths.

Daniken suggests that in some instances, ancient cultures may have even recorded the faces of these 'alien gods' in their works of art. As to why these advanced beings came here and interacted with primitive humans there is less of a clear manifesto. Perhaps these beings were simply exploring the cosmos and stumbled on our planet. Von Däniken suggests that human civilisations emerged due to the accelerating effect of contact between our ancestors and these advanced beings.

The books written by Zecharia Sitchin and Erich von Däniken differ in many ways, but they do share a few fundamental correlations. In both models summarised above, the visiting entities initiate human upliftment from the stone age and start us on the road towards technological development. The most problematic overlap between these hypotheses is the reliance on highly subjective evidence which allows for interpretations which exclude extra-terrestrial beings. This last point is important for us all to acknowledge because it is for just this reason that, according to surveys, around 50% of people still don't believe aliens have visited this planet.

Highlighting the limitations affecting the current state of the ancient alien investigation is certainly not meant as any personal attack, neither on Sitchin or Von Däniken. Without these legendary researchers, there might be no conversation at all happening on this subject.

To move the ancient astronaut debate forward, we have first to acknowledge the elephant in the room, the lack of smoking gun evidence. Megaliths and pyramids are human engineered constructions, cuneiform and hieroglyphs are human recordings, aliens might have inspired some of them, but we can't prove that. People are still waiting for evidence that will convince their sceptical boss, dismissive husband or sneering best-friend.

Highlighting the fact that the best material on offer is insufficient to convince people beyond the echo-chamber of our insular community might sound down-heartening. I imagine many of you, just like us, are tired of conversations in which you try to share your belief in ancient astronauts and end up feeling awkward, annoyed or upset. It stinks to be thought of as wildly eccentric or looked at like a mindless idiot – trust us, we get it.

Having co-authored two books on the role extra-terrestrial intelligence has played in human history, estranging friends and embarrassing our families in the process, we understand what it would mean to find solid objective E.T. evidence.

Having already experienced initiation in the searing fire of public opinion, we felt there was nothing to lose in us giving it another go. We then did something that nobody else had done before; we abandoned the guidance of ancient records and decided to follow the clues offered in the book ALCHERINGA - When the first ancestors were created.

The respected Australian psychic medium, Valerie Barrow, wrote this book back in 2002. We have been lucky enough to meet Valerie and know her to be of outstanding character. ALCHERINGA - When the first ancestors were created tells the tale of advanced extra-terrestrial colonists travelling to Earth in a remote epoch.

After experiencing the loss of their ship and considerable hardships on the planet surface, the surviving crew members engineer the ancestors of Homo sapiens. The alien scientists modified the genome of the resident hominid species, also splicing some of their genes into the new creature. The core story here may well sound familiar, having overlaps with the works of Sitchin, Von Däniken, and a dozen other researchers. So why is ALCHERINGA - When the first ancestors were created superior to any other possible sources we could have used?

The answer to the above is that this manuscript is incredibly detailed, describing several major anomalous events and occurrences on such a scale they would leave tangible traces if real. The book details the author's direct interactions with an extra-terrestrial consciousness, a star being which communicated through an ancient artefact left in her care.

The entity informed Valerie that she would meet people who would help her with the book's content. Subsequently, over twenty individuals shared their retrieved past life memories of the ancient visitation. Many of the people seemed to have specifically entered Valerie's life to offer their piece of the story, and most were unconnected to each other.

Some of you might be wondering how a tale involving discarnate entities and past life memories can be considered any more scientific and objective than theories based on pots shaped like spaceships or ancient writings describing space gods. Valerie was herself perfectly aware that the book would attract natural scepticism and when it was first published she chose to end the manuscript with the following words: "The information in this book is presented to you without any claims whatsoever. It is up to you to decide if there is meaning within, and if its message applies to you."

Well, we had our reasons to believe there was indeed meaning within and that the message did apply to us. We also knew that some past life memories had been scientifically proven to offer genuine records of historical events.

Professor Ian Stevenson, of the University of Virginia's Division of Perceptual Studies, spent decades investigating past lives and successfully used children's recollections of recent past lives to track down places, former family members and historical events. Under rigid scientific protocols, a sceptical academic had proven that past life recall could be a reliable source for locating objective evidence. With so many people offering their memories of the events we were rather spoiled for choice as to which parts we should attempt to validate. Some of the individuals remembered being crew members on the colony ship from the Pleiades, while others recalled being reptilians from Orion in control of Earth and responsible for destroying the mothership.

A few sets of memories even involved people being born into the first generation of hybrids created by the Pleiadian survivors. We selected some of the most significant claims in the narrative and then set out to see if we could validate them. Sixteen years had passed since the book was released, that meant there was some chance relevant scientific

Not only did we find several such scientific studies which offered support for the story, but these had all been published long after the book, meaning Valerie would not have had access to this data.

Our first aim was to attempt the impossible, track down any physical evidence of the Pleiadian mothership. The ship represents a technology far ahead of our own, not only able to travel vast distances but itself sentient and grown from a type of crystal. This vessel is described as colossal, crewed by 50,000 beings.

The weapon used in the ambush combined electromagnetic forces with sonic resonance, it not only shattered the hull but also melted most of the fragments, which then fell toward the planet's surface.

We must admit that we were doubtful that any traces of an alien vessel destroyed in space hundreds of thousands of years ago would remain today. Surely, this was one part of the story we would just have to leave to the open-mindedness of the reader.

Our state of pessimism remained right up until the moment we found the darned thing, and not just a few pieces but a significant part of the wreckage. To our great fortune academics had already retrieved pieces of the debris and carried out an extensive analysis of the material. Numerous scientists had published papers on the subject with all of them admitting a high degree of bafflement.

We were the exception, rather than being baffled we were distinctly elated!

With the remnants of the mothership located we now had the location confirmed, Australia, and a date, 800,000 years ago (approximately). The original story had the survivors heading straight down from the mothership in their escape crafts, arriving in Australia, meaning that we now had another important correlation in the claims.

Assuming the mothership exploded in geostationary orbit both survivors and wreckage should come directly down and hit the same region of land (or sea) immediately below. The survivors landed near Gosford, where one individual purportedly used a laser to engrave a record of the tragic events in stone.

It is beyond our ability to prove this part of the account is true, but the images engraved on a rock wall near Gosford do seem to tell the tale of a wrecked craft and its marooned survivors.

Among the past-life accounts, two people offered details of another mission to Earth, five years after the colony ship's destruction. This time a military fleet travelled through the Pleiades gateway and arrived in orbit, dragging enormous asteroids behind them.

The pilots of these vessels, a leonine race, gave a summary notice to the remaining reptilians to vacate their subterranean bases and return to Orion, or face obliteration. Suffice to say; the planet was inevitably pummelled by huge space-rocks, bringing about a cataclysmic result. We all know that occasionally our planet takes a hit from a rogue meteor of considerable size, it is infrequent, but it happens.

The Earth being hit by multiple large objects from space at the same point in time, with impacts across multiple continents, that would be a huge anomaly. We assumed that any event on that scale would be something easily recognised by geologists, the fact we had never heard of anything like that made us dubious. It turned out that the reason why we had not heard of such a bombardment was that the evidence had only been discovered in late 2016. A team of geologists from Heidelberg University identified evidence of multiple large asteroid impacts across Asia, Australia, Canada and Central America all in a short period.

Their models suggested a resulting global cataclysm of fires, earthquakes, tsunamis and immense dust clouds blocking the sun. With our research producing one confirmation after another, we grew confident in the book's guidance. We identified a few additional correlations and then explored the validity of claims made about the method of travel, also the suggestion that DNA had first been seeded on this planet billions of years ago.

However, we still had one major mountain to climb, the acquisition of detailed scientific evidence to support the claim that our species, Homo sapiens, were the product of extra-terrestrial genetic engineering. Many researchers have claimed such a cosmic creation story, but none have ever produced relevant academic data which could convincingly validate the theory. Well, this last requirement would have been a nearly insurmountable challenge, requiring months of delving into complex academic papers. That was if not for the fact we had already read through most of the relevant evolutionary studies during the research process for our previous book, The Forgotten Exodus: The Into Africa Theory of Human Evolution.

We were already aware of many anomalies in the human evolutionary story, peculiarities within the genome and of evidence suggesting Australia as ground zero for, 'Eden'. With some additional combing through scientific papers, we were able to build on what we already knew, highlighting a raft of genetic anomalies which were in our view the fingerprints for genetic engineering.

One important part of our argument was the fusion of two human chromosomes resulting in chromosome-2. This fusion event has been claimed as evidence for E.T. manipulation many times before, but scientists have always countered that chromosomes can fuse naturally, something observed in many species. Indeed, even wild and tame horses differ in the number of chromosomes they carry due to just such a fusion event. Where the fusion of Chromosome-2 becomes a big neon flashing light for E.T. modifications to early humans is when we consider the fact that the greatest sudden acceleration in human brain size coincides with the dating of this fusion event.

The same moment that chromosome-2 fuses also marks the beginning of genetic diversion from the last shared ancestor for Neanderthals, Denisovans and Sapiens. These three human lineages all carry the fused chromosome, and the benefits it gifted them were so incredible that humans with 46 chromosomes would go on to populate the entire planet while those with 48 rapidly went extinct.

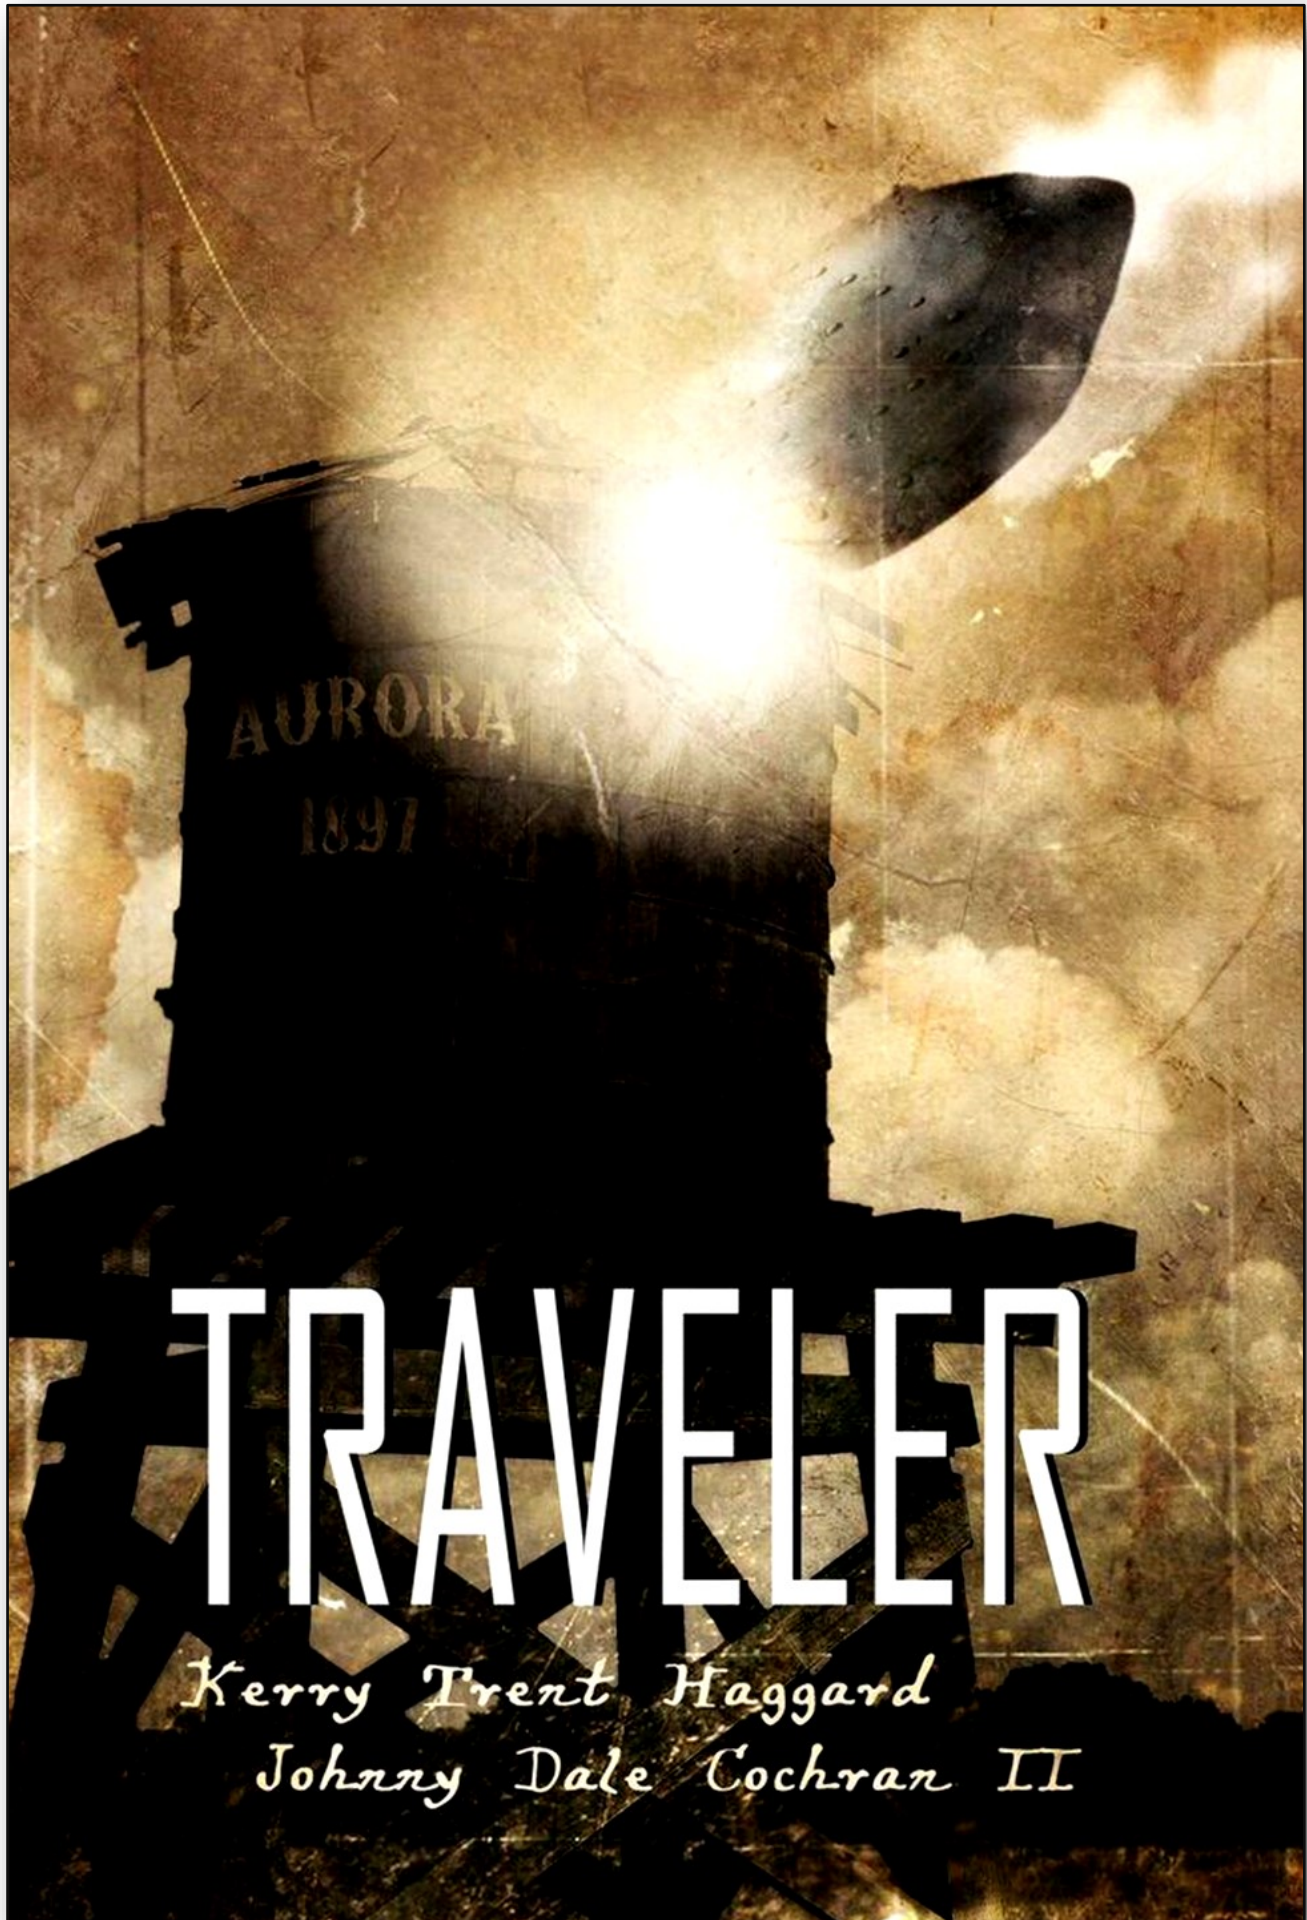

One of the genes that accompanied this sudden expansion in our neural capabilities is ARHGAP11B, responsible for development of the neocortex. ARHGAP11B has been highlighted as anomalous by scientists because it is a tiny snippet of DNA from a much longer gene somehow trimmed out duplicated and then reinserted to the human genome.

To call this sudden replication and insertion of such an important gene sequence suspicious is to understate the matter enormously. There is of course far more to this investigation than we can share in a single piece of writing. Valeri Barrow has brought back to humanity the forgotten story of the Pleiadian star ship, Rexegena, while all we have done is confirm that this story is nonfiction. The final gift from our star-born ancestors is the E.T. disclosure for which so many of us have hungered. Make no mistake this is 'disclosure by the back door' free from the moderation of shady ex-spooks or former politicians. So, if you are tired of hearing the laughter of sceptics, grab your copies of ALCHERINGA - When the first ancestors were created and Hybrid Humans: Scientific Evidence of our 800,000-Year-Old Alien Legacy.

Based on the Aurora, Texas alien crash of 17 April 1897, "TRAVELER" is a newly published novel which pays homage to the crash.

In 1897, a very strange incident occurred in the tiny North Texas town of Aurora, on Saturday, April 17, 1897 at 6 o'clock in the morning. A UFO or "flying machine" as it was referred to at that time in history, metallic silver in color, appeared suddenly in the sky above Aurora and collided with a windmill with a terrific explosion. Scattering debris over several acres of ground, the crash destroyed the windmill, the adjacent water tank and a local judge's flower garden. Among the wreckage, the townspeople found the dead body of the ship's pilot. Although damaged severely in the crash, it was clear that "he was not an inhabitant of this world". A Dallas newspaper article, published two days after the crash, stated that "the pilot's funeral would take place the following day", April 18th. Another Fort Worth paper said, "The pilot, who was not an inhabitant of this world, was given proper Christian burial at the Aurora Cemetery." When the pilot was buried, a marker was placed on his grave. In 1973, newspaper reporter Bill Case described the marker as "having a strange design on it resembling a flying saucer with portholes." Shortly after Case wrote a story describing the grave marker, somebody stole it. Today, some claim the story is not true and was created by Aurora residents to boost tourism, many others do believe that a spaceship crash-landed there. The case of the alien that fell from the sky in Aurora, Texas, continues to fascinate people to this very day and In today's MUFON community the story is now for the most part considered a historical fact.

Set in 1997, the new novel "TRAVELER" is a entertaining tale based on the crash and an in depth look at how the story possibly played out in the old west. A long time enthusiast of classic horror and UFOs, author, Kerry Haggard first learned of the Aurora alien crash from Texas native John Cochran in 2015. Due to an incident which Kerry witnessed during his childhood of a flying saucer landing in his small hometown, the story hit him with such passion that he and John spent the next several months working day and night to form an outline for a screenplay based on the fictional hunt for the buried extra-terrestrial 100 years later. From there it grew into today's novel and screenplay.

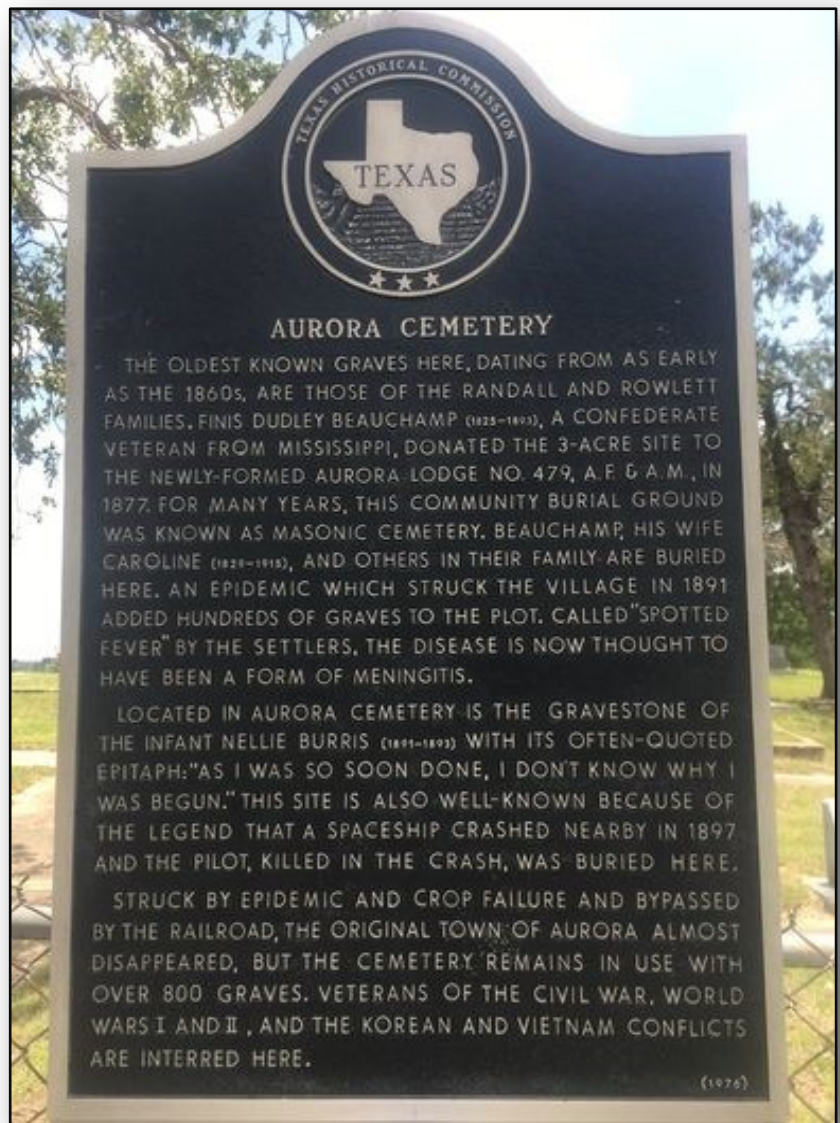

24 year-old Gainesville Texas newspaper columnist Bonnie Reynolds has been handed an assignment. Finding the resting place of a 100 year old extra-terrestrial buried in the small town of Aurora.. According to local reports published in both Dallas and Fort Worth papers of the time, a small being clipped the edge of a local windmill with his silver flying machine and slammed head on into the town's only water tower. Good-hearted folks of the time realized that he was "not of this world" but did the one thing they could for the fallen traveler. They gave him a proper Christian burial. The quest to locate his grave turns out to be more than an ordinary newspaper assignment. What she finds is a select few members of the town struggling to keep an ancient secret from corrupt federal agents determined to do harm and by the time its over the reporter wishes she had never seen the ancient article which led her down this road. That is until an outlaw named Tombs rides in to save the day.

The 1897 sections of the novel are heavily based on documented historical facts detailing the town of Aurora at the time and the single alien crash in the early morning of April 17th, 1897. Written in the past tense, they are, however, Haggard's own interpretation of how the actual events may have played out in the old west at the close of the 19th century. He tried to imagine how the good people of a small south-western town may react to such an unprecedented happening. How they may deal with and comprehend the phenomenon of an honest to goodness extra-terrestrial craft falling from the heavens in a time when nothing but birds ruled the sky. How they may come together to cope with such an occurrence and its aftermath not only physically but mentally and how it would go down in their history.

Reported in both the April 19, 1897 Dallas Morning News and Fort Worth Observer, stories concerning the event were subsequently handed down from elders of the time. Some accounts swore it was the most astonishing thing to have ever happened in the community. Others claimed it was all a lie, made up to try and save a town that was in serious trouble due to fire, crop failure and epidemic. The good people of Aurora today must feel certain the story is true. In the local cemetery there is an official monument detailing the graveyard's history which mentions the event. Placed there by the Texas Historical Commission in 1976, the inscription concerning the alien is as follows, "This site is also well known because of the legend that a spaceship crashed nearby in 1897 and the pilot, killed in the crash, was buried

Taken from real life occurrences and situations from their vastly different pasts for the purpose of creating the novel and screenplay, the 1997 sections of the book, all written in the present tense, were created by Odessa, Texas native, Johnny Cochran Johnny Cochran from whom much of this story is based, including not only the Johnny character but Tombs as well, and Haggard during the summer of 2015. The two backgrounds combined tell some pretty wild accounts to give the reader an entertaining fictional tale based on a substantial historical event. Many of the stories included in this work such as the railroad tie thrown in the road, the angry Pomeranian locked in the van, the misguided hand grenade and the visit from the reptiles truly took place!

Kerry Trent Haggard is the founder, writer and host of "Wheels of the Past" productions based in Beaver Falls, PA. Relocating there to begin the project from his home state of Georgia in 2017, the show is currently under production in the Pittsburgh area. "Wheels of the Past" is a historically accurate and entertaining series devoted to the history and preservation of classic cars, trucks and motorcycles which have informative stories to tell..

... and he has multiple book signings and speaking engagements lined up around the country (USA) this year. During his extensive 3 year research in relation to the event, Kerry discovered that in the early morning hours April 17th 1897 a single alien spacecraft lost control over the sky's of Texas in the United States and clipped the edge of a fast moving windmill above the small town of Aurora just north of Fort Worth. It veered into the path of the town's only water tower and crashed with a terrific explosion which awakened many of the residents. Reported in both Dallas and Fort Worth newspapers of the time, the story of the downed Aurora TX "Traveler" was not the first of such occurrences to be sure. There were hundreds of UFO sightings witnessed and documented in newspapers throughout the old west beginning shortly after the Civil War from San Francisco to Louisiana coming to a head in 1897.

Just over a year ago." Haggard states, " I spoke to dedicated Aurora researcher Jim Mars before his death and he as well as I believed that the Aurora TX alien crash was totally authentic and that the unfortunate alien killed in the crash is still buried in the local cemetery till this day. He was thrilled with my work and the recognition it would bring concerning the event and in writing my novel I have striven to handle the story and the incident with the utmost respect. To articulate the 1897 sections with the same feelings and reactions which the residents of Aurora may have felt with the realization that the fallen traveler was indeed from another

A Windmill Demolishes It.

Aurora, Wise Co., Tex., April 17.—(To The News.)—About 6 o'clock this morning the early risers of Aurora were astonished at the sudden appearance of the airship which has been sailing through the country.

It was traveling due north, and much nearer the earth than ever before. Evidently some of the machinery was out of order, for it was making a speed of only ten or twelve miles an hour and gradually settling toward the earth. It sailed directly over the public square, and when it reached the north part of town collided with the tower of Judge Proctor's windmill and went to pieces with a terrific explosion, scattering debris over several acres of ground, wrecking the windmill and water tank and destroying the Judge's flower garden.

The pilot of the ship is supposed to have been the only one on board, and while his remains are badly disfigured, enough of the original has been picked up to show that he was not an inhabitant of this world.

Mr. T. J. Weems, the United States signal service officer at this place and an authority on astronomy, gives it as his opinion that he was a native of the planet Mars.

Papers found on his person—evidently the record of his travels—are written in some unknown hieroglyphics, and can not be deciphered.

The ship was too badly wrecked to form any conclusion as to its construction or motive power. It was built of an unknown metal, resembling somewhat a mixture of aluminum and silver, and it must have weighed several tons.

The town is full of people to-day who are viewing the wreck and gathering specimens of the strange metal from the debris. The pilot's funeral will take place at noon to-morrow.

The Arthur's Seat Coffins Rise Again

EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND — On a fine June day in 1836, five schoolboys went rabbit hunting in Holyrood Park, the 650-acres of semi-wilderness that dominates the skyline of Scotland's ancient capital. What they discovered has remained one of the town's more bizarre mysteries — a hidden cache of 17 tiny wooden coffins, each containing a wooden body. They have come to be known as the "Arthur's Seat Coffins," named for the park's highest peak, although conflicting accounts make the exact location of the discovery and the number of artefacts found both subjects of debate.

Eight of the artefacts, all that are known to survive, were donated to the Scottish Society of Antiquaries in 1902 and now hold pride of place in the town's National Museum of Scotland.

Those eight survivors appear as the dramatic thread that runs through popular Edinburgh novelist Ian Rankin's 2001 Detective John Rebus mystery, The Falls. "As soon as I saw them," Rankin says, "I knew they would make a great story, especially as no one had come up with an incontrovertible interpretation of their meaning."

While my own interpretation of such a very cold case can never, no matter how plausible, be incontrovertible, there's no doubt it will be as controversial, today, as it would have been back in 1836.

First, though, let's look back at the various theories presented since then ...

- Witchcraft: "Satanic spell-manufactory" wrote The Scotsman, speculating there may still be "some of the weird sisters hovering about who retain their ancient power to work the spells of death by entombing the likenesses of those they wish to destroy."
- A burial for people who died overseas: Less tongue-in-cheek, the Edinburgh Evening Post proposed the coffins represented "an ancient custom which prevailed in Saxony, of burying in effigy departed friends who had died in a distant land."
- A burial for sailors lost at sea: The Caledonian Mercury reported a superstition "which exists among some sailors in this country, that they enjoined their wives on parting to give them a Christian burial in an effigy" if they were lost at sea.
- A hoard of lucky charms: In 1976, historian Walter Hävernick of the Museum of Hamburg, referred to a "German seafaring superstition of keeping mandrake roots or dolls in tiny coffins as talismen," theorizing that "the coffins were a hoard of lucky charms, hidden in the hillside by a merchant, to be sold to sailors."
- A burial for Burke and Hare's victims: William Burke and William Hare were two Irish immigrants who sold corpses for the classrooms of anatomist Dr. Robert Knox. Not satisfied simply digging up the recently buried, the two partners turned to murder, sourcing no fewer than 16 victims for Knox before they were caught in 1828. Could it be, the museum suggests, that the coffins' secret interment "represents a substitute burial for the poor, friendless souls dispatched by the murderous pair?" But while it is true that "twelve of Burke and Hare's victims were female," the museum cautions, "the corpses in the coffins are all dressed as men."

William Burke

In a 2013 Smithsonian Magazine article, journalist Mike Dash gathered all the evidence then known about the artefacts, and expanded upon the mystery's major elements ...

- The location: Published accounts leave it uncertain whether the coffins were discovered in either of two separate locations on Arthur's Seat or a third location along Salisbury Crags.
- The carving: According to a 1994 study by scholars Allan Simpson and Samuel Menefee, the artefacts were carved using sharp, hooked knives, and that the "bodies" could have been repurposed from an existing set of figurines, perhaps wooden soldiers. The tin decorations on the coffins suggest they may have been made by a shoemaker, considering that contemporary shoe buckles were made of tin.
- The clothing: Due to the use of one- and two-ply thread, not manufactured before 1812, and three-ply thread, not manufactured until around 1830, it is apparent that the artefacts, if "buried" at the same time, would date from 1830 at earliest. "None of this proves," says Dash, that "all the burials took place at so late a date as 1830; it is possible that the decayed surviving figurines present interments that took place earlier than this, and also that the figurines sewn with one- or two-ply thread predate 1830."

We should here note, however, that thread manufacturer Coats & Clark's own historical timeline puts the manufacture and marketing of three-ply thread at 1812, which expands the possible timespan of internment considerably.

- The physical condition: The coffins were reported stacked in two rows of eight, with one beginning a third row. The bottom row was most decayed, leading to the idea that all 17 had been placed over many years. Dash cautions, however, that "It may be that the decayed coffins were simply those that occupied the lower tier in the burial nook, and so were most exposed to water damage."

Toward the end of his investigation, Dash repeats the "potentially fatal objection" to the Burke & Hare theory, that "no fewer than 12 of Burke and Hare's victims were female, yet the clothed bodies found in the coffins were uniformly dressed in male attire."

"In the absence of firm evidence of any connection to the activities of Burke and Hare," Dash concludes, "I would suggest the first step in any future investigations should be to examine Scottish newspapers published between, say, 1820 and 1836, for evidence of any other disasters involving the death of 17 people — ideally, none of them women.”

Here, too, we must question the number of dead versus the reported number of artefacts found. Burke and Hare’s murder victims number 16, not 17, and at least one account claims our intrepid schoolboys spent some time pelting each other with coffins before reporting their find. If one or two had ended up in a gorse patch, the thorny bush that covers much of the park, they would have likely never been found.

But what might we conclude if these artefacts were made to represent the living, not the dead?

What then?

Scotland’s 1820 Radical War was a week-long populist uprising rooted in the earlier American and French Revolutions, culminating during the economic downturn following the Napoleonic Wars.

Punctuated by labour strikes and armed engagements between marchers and government forces, the uprising ended with the execution of three men and the transportation of 19 others to Australia. It is now known, however, that the government had precipitated the uprising using spies and agents provocateur. As a result, the Radical leaders were quickly identified and punished, and a new sense of Scottish national identity was soon orchestrated by literary lion Sir Walter Scott on the occasion of King George IV’s 1822 visit to Edinburgh. By the time the coffins were discovered, the rebellion had been largely forgotten, save perhaps by those whose loved ones had been lost to either the hangman’s noose or a ship bound for Australia.

And so it’s my theory that the artefacts’ raison d’être was to honour the Radicals, and that they were later “resurrected” in an attempt to keep the flame of rebellion lit in a land too quick to forget — an attempt that ultimately failed.

To see how this theory might fit better with what has since been proposed, let’s consider that ...

- Their eyes are open: While Menefee and Simpson report this suggests the figurines were possibly repurposed from a set of wooden soldiers, it is plausible this was meant to signify they represented persons who were not yet dead.
- They are clothed: The workers most associated with the uprising were weavers. Could it be that the clothing symbolized the products of their craft? The three executed leaders were weavers, as were nine of the transportees. Moreover, is it possible the clothes were made from garments the Radicals discarded in jail? It is documented in the prison letters of John Baird, one of the executed, that the “Colonel of the 80th Regiment is one of the best of men; he has given each of us a fine shirt as a present.”
- They are dressed as men: Since the most damning argument against the Burke & Hare theory is that some of their victims were women, I suggest the clothing symbolized that all of the transportees were male.

Let’s now consider where they were found.

Bearing in mind that our rabbit-hunting schoolboys were never interviewed, the Arthur’s Seat locations remain in doubt. According to Mike Dash’s article, however, there was an additional report published in Oxford University’s Notes & Queries journal telling a tale circulated only orally at the time -- that the discovery was made by one schoolboy’s attempt to climb the sheer face of Salisbury Crags.

Shortly following the uprising, Sir Walter Scott proposed that unemployed weavers be kept busy building a footpath around the Craggs, since known as "The Radical Road." Scott's proposal was not born of his benevolent heart, however, since the hands of a weaver would have been punished by the work.

From the Radical Road, visitors can still look out upon all of Edinburgh and the one ocean that connects us all, no matter how far-flung we live. What finer spot to hide a tribute to the transportees than along a road planned by a Scottish nobleman, but built by Radicals?

Now, let's consider the profession of the person or persons who might have fashioned these artefacts.

According to Simpson and Menefee, the coffins' tin decorations suggest they may have been made by a shoemaker, considering that shoe buckles of the day were made of tin. But more must be considered if the fabrication was a political act.

In James Halliday's Scotland - A Concise History, the author lists the trades most likely to be radicalized: "Smiths and tailors, weavers and cobblers, were to some extent able to determine their own working hours, and could award themselves some time for study and discussion. Members of these crafts were famous for generations for their interest in Radical politics, and around anvil and bench, loom and last, many an impromptu debating society flourished; discussing public events, recent publications and their own social condition. By the 1790s they could have been discussing the triumph of democracy in America and the principles of Liberty, Equality and Fraternity extended to all men by the French revolutionaries after 1789."

As Halliday here confirms, the Radicals who marched in 1820 were not all weavers.

Of the nineteen transportees, just nine weavers are listed, and seven others are listed as a tailor, a cobbler, two blacksmiths, two nailers, and a carpenter -- all skills found in the carving and decoration of the coffins and the clothing of the figurines.

But while weaving, woodworking and metalwork can all be seen in the crafting of the artefacts, it is difficult to be-

since the 16th century, they have not had an easy time. In the 18th century, for example, British merchants applied for Gypsy transportation, and ten are recorded as being shipped to Virginia in 1715. And so it's not hard to understand why they may have felt an ideological kinship with the Radicals.

The Gypsies were skilled, moreover, in crafts that afforded them an itinerant living, regardless of the law. As an Edinburgh schoolboy, I well remember the Gypsy knife sharpener who regularly plied his trade at the foot of my street. And, if we turn time back to the 1820s, we would see many others repairing pots and pans or making broomsticks and clothes pegs for sale. In fact, if we consider how similar certain clothes pegs look to the carved bodies found inside the Arthur's Seat coffins, it's easy to see how Gypsy hands could have fashioned the artefacts. Even the style of curved knife Simpson and Menefee suggest as the possible carving tool can be recognized in Gypsy peg knives, so named because they were used to carve clothes pegs, and still made today.

One of the names given to the Gypsies in early Scottish records is "Egyptians," perhaps due to the belief that Egypt was the group's country of origin — a belief that the Gypsies are known to have encouraged. While recent genetic studies have shown that the Gypsy blood group left India some 1500 years ago, there is the distinct possibility that some of the nomadic group made their way to the UK through Egypt. There are, in fact, many examples of a common Egyptian antiquity that look very much like those found in Holyrood Park — the funerary figures known as Ushabti. Placed in ancient Egyptian tombs as symbolic servants to the dead, these small wooden figures have been found lying in carved wooden coffins. It is interesting that modern Egyptology is considered to have lieve that so many skilled hands would take part in their creation.

There is, however, one group with proficiency in all those crafts — the Scottish Gypsies.

The 1822 Turnpike Act, signed into law just two years after the uprising, legislated that Gypsies should be fined for roadside camping, a liberty the group had long taken. Thirteen years later, just one year before the discovery of the Arthur's Seat coffins, that law was further strengthened, and the freedom of the Gypsies further constrained.

Although the group has a history of Scottish residence begun in 1822, just two years after the Radical Uprising. Readers of this article who lean toward a conspiratorial view of history may appreciate that the uprising was an event the social elites and the government would have certainly wished to rapidly bury. In Berresford Ellis and Seamas Mac a'Ghobhainn's fine book, The Radical Rising, the authors report that the memory of the insurrection quickly "began to grow dim, and the folk memory of it was soon lost. References to it in records became obscure and soon no mention of it at all was made in history books."

It seems, though, that the memory of the insurrection did not just naturally grow dim with the passage of time, but was helped along its way to historical obscurity. In his preface to the 1989 edition of the book, Ellis has this to say: "One of the reasons that we felt obvious efforts had been made to 'edit' the events from Scottish history was the fact that the rising contained a national context, for it was the intention of the Radicals to establish an independent Scottish Parliament — an objective that was unacceptable to the Establishment and its historians."

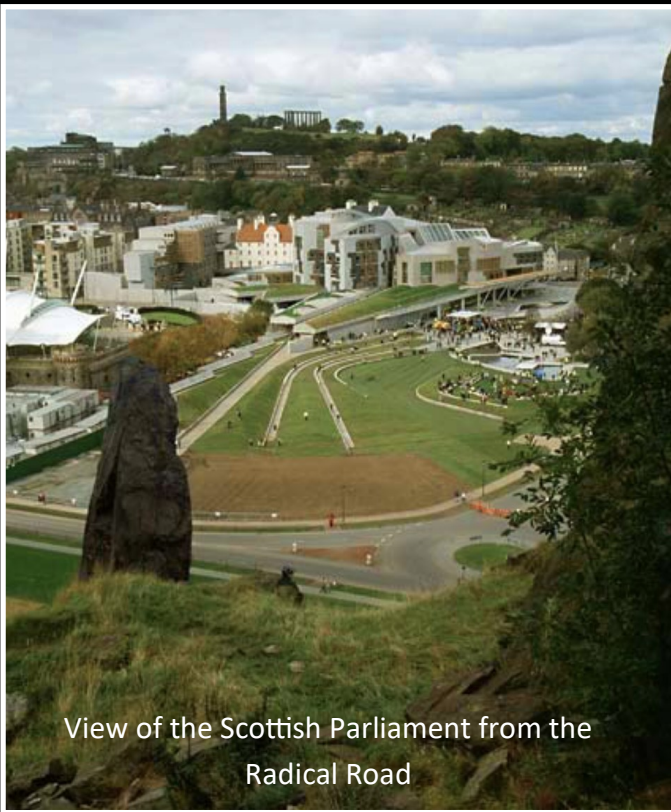

If it had been proposed the Arthur's Seat coffins were in fact fashioned and hidden as a tribute to the Radicals, and then "resurrected" to rekindle the torch of rebellion, then it's likely efforts would be made to side-line their connection to a movement that had come to a head just 15 years earlier.

It would not be difficult. All around the union, those whose fortunes might likely have suffered from renewed debate — from the halls of Westminster to the drawing rooms of the gentry and the editorial desks of the national press — would have promoted theories about the coffins that were not nearly so controversial, while ignoring any theory that smacked of radical intent.

Perhaps their time is now.

Radical Road

Walking along the Radical Road today, visitors can enjoy a fine view of the new Scottish Parliament, standing cheek-by-jowl to Holyrood Palace, the Queen's Edinburgh home. Opened in 2004, the Parliament symbolizes the latest milestone in the long struggle for Scottish autonomy.

The first referendum for Scottish independence was held in 2014, ten years after the opening, but failed by a slim margin. At the time of this writing, a second referendum has been postponed until Autumn 2019. Between now and then, it's clear, the Scots have much to think about.

If my theory about the original purpose of the Arthur's Seat Coffins is correct, then the Radicals of 1820 are still not dead, and may finally have a chance to proclaim what they have long been denied — a chorus of tiny voices shouting "Yes!" at last.

UFOS OVER THE LOTHIAN REGION

By Malcolm Robinson

The City of Edinburgh, Scotland's capital, as well as surrounding districts have seen many UFO sightings over the years so without any further ado, let us now have a look at just a few of them.

In her book "UFOs and How to See them," (1992, Anaya Publishing Ltd), Jenny Randles mentions that on the 17th of November 1978, a silver disc was seen to rise from a forest and then sink back into the trees near Livingston. Livingston was to achieve incredible notoriety the following year when a major UFO Incident took place in Dechmont Woods. At Tranent near Edinburgh, a disc like craft appeared and tilted to project a beam of light towards the ground. This occurred on the 2nd of January 1979. Suddenly the beam mysteriously cut off in mid air, as if it was solid. This incident reminds me of the time when I witnessed such a beam of light coming down from the sky near Aultbea in Wester Ross which came down from a clear night sky, stopped, then zoomed back up into the sky and was gone in seconds. Surprisingly, Scotland as a nation has to my knowledge, very few entity reports. Jenny Randles mentions in her book "UFOs and How to See Them", that in the Tranent area on the 16th of February 1980, a man claimed to have met several small 'creatures' wearing silver suits. They emerged from a hovering oval 'craft' which then emitted a smell of burning sulphur. However, if that wasn't enough for the already now startled man, one of the 'creatures' uttered, "This was once out planet, and if you do not change your ways we will have to send a warning and only the chosen will be saved"!

Yes well, where have we heard those words before? Jenny also mentions that on the 11th of August 1991, a triangular craft was seen in the skies above the Bathgate Hills, this craft then shot beams of light down towards the ground of which seconds later an 'explosion' rocked a house at nearby Blackridge. A major mystery occurred in the skies over Scotland back in February 1976. The Scottish Daily Record Newspaper of February 18th 1976 ran a headline which stated, "FLYING SAUCERS THAT GO BOOM IN THE NIGHT". This referred to an 800 mile an hour 'shock wave' which was heard by thousands of people as it crossed the sky. Scientists at the Institute of Geological Science who operated recording stations said that they were 'astonished'. Dr Christopher Browitt was reported to have said, "It could not have been an earthquake". "The shock wave was travelling too slowly". "It seems to have been caused by something in the atmosphere passing across our area".

The RAF admitted the whole thing had them baffled, and the famous words from an RAF spokesperson were, "It might have been a plane, but it wasn't one of ours". Ken Rogers, Chairman of the British UFO Society, stated that this was the sort of things that he dreamt about. However, the more likely cause and thought provoking answer, came from Professor John Ericson of Edinburgh University's Department of Defence Studies, he stated that, "It 'could' have been caused by a high altitude Russian or American spy plane". "It is only a remote possibility, but they do pass in the night". This was all very well, but apparently radar sets did not pick up anything unusual that night. ! UFOs or secret spy planes breaking the sound barrier over Edinburgh, Place your bets.

Moving on to 1984, Rebecca Harrison (pseudonym) wrote to me with her UFO sighting which to this day still has her completely mystified. This is one of those puzzling low level close proximity UFO sightings of which the Ministry of Defence tell us that they are of no 'Defence Significance'. (Do they know something they are not telling us?) It was in March 1984 that Rebecca Harrison's five children aged between 12 and 14, were out sledging in a nearby field at Broxburn West Lothian, (not an uncommon thing for Scotland to have snow in March, I can tell you !). Anyway, it was a bright night with lots of stars sparkling in the night sky. It was around 9:00pm when Rebecca's daughter aged 14, ran into the house shouting at her mother that a 'star' was chasing them, she stated that this 'star' had approached nearer and nearer them, then hovered directly above them, at this they all took fright and ran for home. Wondering whether to Believe her daughter or not. However she decided to go out and have a look and was accompanied by her other daughter. As they walked in the direction of the field, they met up with her next door neighbour and her husband they were coming back from the field and said to them, "There's hundreds of UFOs flying around up there"! They were on their way to phone Turnhouse Airport to see if they had picked up any of these objects on radar, and as it turned out, when they did get through to Turnhouse Airport, Air Traffic Control stated that they had not picked up any unusual radar returns that night. Rebecca and her daughter continued on their way to the field and once they had arrived there, they were startled to see, lots of red, blue, and green lights flying around and above this field. One minute these lights would be low, almost touching the grass, and then they would shoot straight back up into the sky. Both witnesses stood dumbfounded for around twenty minutes, after which they decided to return back to their house. However, when reaching their house, Rebecca was astonished to see one bright green light which was moving slowly over the roof of her house, to a position where it was no more than twenty feet above the roof of her house. Rebecca informed me that she is well used to spotting aircraft, as she is on the flight path of Turnhouse Airport, so she 'knows' what Aircraft look like, this however, was no aircraft, moreover, there wasn't any noise, even although it was practically touching the roof of her house. She described this light to me, as being like two huge candle lights joined together. In a later discussion with her son, her son said that he saw a long grey 'thing' which had come down out of the bottom of this light. Research undertaken by SPI, provided no clues as to what this light or object could have been. This was not to be the last 'light phenomenon' which would appear above a witness's house!

AN ENTITY AT THE WINDOW !

It was during January 1987, that David Marwood (pseudonym) after a night out, went along to see a friend who lived in Edinburgh. It was around 01:30am and after some discussion he went to bed. After around five minutes of lying awake and thinking about the Egyptian Pyramids, he suddenly felt a strange presence in the room, as though there was something floating above him. David then leapt out of bed and put on the light, his heart was pounding and as he stood and looked around the room, he observed that there was nothing at all amiss. In his Interview with Garry Wood and Stan Brown, David had this to say "About three minutes later as I lay back in bed I heard what sounded like chamber music being played in perfect stereo". "I then thought to myself, 'they're here', and suddenly the music stopped". "I panned my eyes around the room, and as they drifted towards the window, I saw an 'entity' looking at me through a small gap in the curtains". "I turned away in fear and focused my vision on the ceiling". "My mind was frantically trying to work out what I had seen". "Was it a cat? a plastic bag ? or even a vampire ! or had my friend spiked the hash we had smoked earlier" ? "Or perhaps I had been thinking about the book Communion which I had recently read."

For those readers who are not aware of the book Communion (and I'm sure there can't be that many)! It was written by UFO witness Whitley Streiber, and discussed his 'visits' by what he called, 'The Visitors', small grey 'creatures' which stole into his bedroom and abducted him. This book was an International best seller, and advanced the subject of UFO abductions onto a worldwide platform. But to continue with David's testimony. "I was too frightened to look back at the window, I wanted to reach for my watch which was lying beside the bed, but I couldn't move, I felt as if I was paralysed". "I lay like this for five minutes and then forced myself to glance back at the window". "It" was still there". "I turned away and looked back at the ceiling". "I was terrified, inside my mind was screaming for my friend to come and help me". "I thought I must be imagining it". "Hash doesn't affect me like this". "I checked the window once again and it was still there". "Forcing myself, I plucked up the courage to stare at it". "As I watched, it moved its head from side to side and then knocked on the window". "Petrified, I focused my eyes back on the ceiling". "I must have gone through this routine five or six times". "On one occasion, the entity 'waved its arm"! "With my eyes still fixed on the ceiling, I was then overcome with a strange feeling that 'it' was floating around the room, although I did not observe it, I just knew it was there". "Suddenly the chamber music started again". "This seemed to calm me down, and eventually I must have fallen asleep". "I awoke the next morning with a clear memory of the previous night's events".

Garry and Stan proceeded to ask David about any other strange experiences that he might have had, to which David replied that when he was 24 years of age, he would often be aroused from his sleep by the violent shaking of his bed. This would always subside moments after awakening. He had no idea what might have caused this. He also claimed, according to Garry's report, that on one occasion, he awoke to find a triangular mark on his chest, which was still evident today. When asked by Garry to show this mark, David duly did so and removed his shirt, and displayed a tiny bright red spot which was scarcely visible to the naked eye. In Garry and Stan's fine appraisal of this case, they explain that David freely admits to smoking hash in the past, but on each occasion, it has never gave him a 'vision' like this before, and at no time was he ever on medication which might have 'enhanced' a situation like this. His Grandmother and father had died of Huntingdon's Chorea, an extremely rare hereditary disease which begins in middle age, and is characterized by involuntary movements and rapid degeneration, which will eventually progress to dementia. This disease has no known cure. Garry and Stan speculate that we have to give consideration to the fact that coupled with smoking hash, and of recently reading the book Communion, it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that his experience may have been due to a combination of both. The big factor in all this is, can we really say for sure, knowing how vast and complex the entity reports are world-wide, that this case simply did not happen in the real world (whatever that is!). We can but document such cases and hope that somewhere along the line, similar patterns emerge which will assist the eventual build up of cases which might bring us nearer to the truth! We'll visit some more UFO sightings from the Edinburgh and Lothian region in future issues of UFO Outer Limits Magazine, so until then, stay tuned and keep looking to the skies.

Made Of Code?

By Diane Tessman

Rethinking The Possibility Of An Emulated World

Sub-atomic particles compose our reality, but might these also be called pixels? Pixels are the particles which compose the computer world. If our world is composed of pixels, who or what created them? Is human DNA a form of synthetic biology? If so, who or what created our DNA? Is the shocking answer that we live in a super-computer simulated and emulated world?

Professor Nick Bostrom is the University of Oxford Director of the Future of Humanity Institute; his research on "Do we live in a computer simulation?" is highly respected. Rich Terrell, from the NASA Jet Propulsion Laboratory, California Institute of Technology has helped design missions to Mars, discovered four new moons around Saturn, Neptune and Uranus and taken pictures of the distant solar system. He also is a proponent of our reality being a computer emulation. A number of other respected physicists, astronomers, and even engineers, are fascinated with the likelihood of this theory.

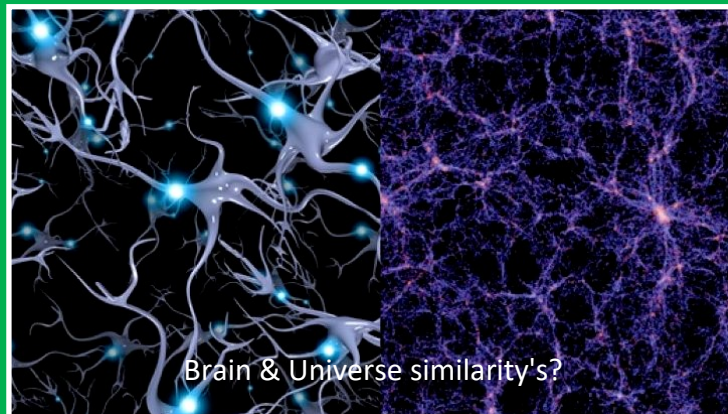

Incidentally, the only difference between a computer simulation and a computer emulation is that the simulation remains external to the experiencer, while the computer emulation is within the individual as well. This emulation includes emotions, intuition, spiritual feelings, and so forth.

The idea that we exist inside a great computer which simulates and emulates our world and our universe, is repugnant to most of us. However, there are people who find it exciting. Investigating and searching to find the truth is what science should be all about, and it is no coincidence that spirituality is also about investigating and finding truth. I suspect that there is a larger spiritual truth to which all individual paths lead, and I suspect that larger truth is scientifically valid as well.

Our DNA can be "downloaded" into pixel form; usually DNA is expressed as TTGGGAGGCCGCCGAGGC (a sample). North-western University offers extensive research on this topic which can be found online. If you replace "A" with a dark grey pixel, "C" with a slightly lighter gray pixel, "T" with a still lighter grey pixel, and "G" with the lightest color grey pixel, you have the world of computer code.

http://www.basic.northwestern.edu/g-buehler/genomes/g\_append.htm.

Brain & Universe similarity's?

High level scientists are even now conducting experiments to discover whether the universe exists within a simulation created by super-computers either of Earth's future or created by an alien intelligence.

The Limited View: Aliens or Future

Humans Are the Programmers

It seems that there are two ways of looking at the question, "Are we in a computer simulation?" We can look at it in a limited way, wondering if aliens from another world, or perhaps humans of the future, having created a quantum computer which has run a simulation of our universe.

Is this incredible? In 2018, we now have quantum computers which are indeed running simulations of this universe as well as a variety of other possible universes (multiverses), so we can assume that our descendants in, for instance, 200 years, will be even better at it. Will the forms of life within a simulation eventually gain self-awareness?

If future humans are the programmers of our universe, it leads to a confusing paradox because we are the creators of computers in the first place. This is one of those “time conundrums” to which there is no answer as we view it with our limited knowledge, but maybe in 200 years, we will realize that humankind is in a seemingly infinite cycle of creating itself. Consciousness may hold the key. Was it human explorers (explorers of space/time), who were the legendary “ancient aliens”? Did we come back and seed our own civilizations, even though we worked with the materials available at the time? Thus we have huge, mind boggling, stone structures placed all around the planet. Structures from the Mayan, Egyptian, and many other ancient civilizations seem to echo each other and be equally mysterious. How could these have been built by primitive people, how could the stones weighting hundreds of tons have been moved?

“Advanced science is considered magic by primitive people,” to paraphrase Arthur C. Clarke. Certainly quantum computers are advanced science; perhaps our human lives and the dynamic forms of life all around us on Earth, are that magic, and also, that advanced science. Perhaps it is possible that we are in the program of highly advanced humans from our own future.

Another limited view is that the beings who program our simulation are aliens from a distant planet. This theory assumes that on almost any planet on which life reaches a state of advanced intelligence, the sentient species will create/discover computer science. It will then progress over time as the sentient species progresses, and will eventually create quantum computers which have the ability to have conscious lifeforms within the program who are self aware. So, the advanced alien intelligence finds that in the cave days depicted in “2001: A Space Odyssey,” the apes have now become primitive humanoids; it all unfolds within their computer emulation!

The Grander Option: Is the Universe a Self-Created, Holographic Simulation?

Might the universe be a hologram by its very definition and existence? Dr. Rudy Schild, astrophysicist, has put forth the theory that black holes have been misnamed, they are instead “magnetic eternally collapsing objects” (MECOs), and they or their event horizons may be the source of the hologram in which we exist.

Definitions of a hologram: 1) a three-dimensional image formed by the interference of light beams from a laser or other coherent light source. 2) A hologram is a physical structure that diffracts light into an image. The term “hologram” can refer to both the encoded material and the resulting image. Encoded? A hologram image is a simulation by definition.

From this we can theorize that if humans have the intelligence to create computers, the universe itself, which is an intelligent mind far beyond our ability to comprehend – has created holographic worlds and realities which are simulations. Spirituality tells us that we are sparks of the universe experiencing itself. Long story short, might quantum waves and particles be pixels, created by the universe itself?

Particles on a Grid?

Fortunately, we don’t need to decide at this moment, whether our computer simulation is limited or as grand as the entire universe. In time, we will design a super-computer which simulates a living, seemingly organic world. This simulated world will include the development of the human species with our higher learning abilities. How will the minds within know their world is simulated? Perhaps they will not.

At the University of Washington, a super-computer is working to discover the truth of our existence. “Imagine the situation where we get a big enough computer to simulate our universe, and we start such a simulation on our computers,” says Professor Martin Savage, a physicist working on University of Washington project. “If that simulation runs long enough, and has the same laws as our universe, then something like our universe will emerge within that simulation, and the situation will repeat itself within each simulation.”

“The current understanding of string theory indicates that there are 10,500 universes with different laws that determine the behavior of particles within them. So it is certainly true, that with enough computer resources, theorists would like to explore these universes,” he adds.

Finite computer resources mean that space/time is not continuous but set on a grid with a finite volume, designed to create maximum energy subatomic particles. The direction these particles flow will depend on how they are ordered on the grid. University of Washington will be looking at the distribution of the highest energy cosmic rays in order to detect patterns that could suggest that universe is the creation of some futuristic computer technology.

Particles on a grid? Are we indeed talking about the pixels of a computer?

If it does turn out that we are mere players in some sort of computer program, they suggest that there may be a way to interrupt the program and play with the minds of our creators. “One could imagine trying to figure out how to manipulate the code, communicate with the code and questions that appear weird to consider today,” says Professor Savage.

How about re-programming the simulation like James Kirk did at Star Fleet Academy with the Kobayashi Maru simulation? How about escaping the matrix?

What if our descendants the future humans (who might have designed our own simulated world), are in a simulation too? Perhaps highly advanced aliens or transcendent masters operate an even bigger universal super-computer. Another theory: Could this explain past lives? Perhaps your past lifetime is merely a parallel aspect of your emulated mind within the simulation - a different program of YOU. All sorts of paranormal and metaphysical ideas can be explained through the computer-simulation theory and this theory explains the anomalies of UFO and alien behavior as well.

Goodness, are we actually in a computer simulation in this universe which we know and love so well? Some very smart people feel this is the only answer to stubborn questions which don't make sense with any other answer. Are the extreme distances involved, from star to star and from galaxy to galaxy, truly impossible? These vast distances become irrelevant in a simulated universe.

Could this be the reason Earth species are becoming extinct, often suffering from an immune deficiency disease which now involves many diverse species? Has our "Earth simulation" caught or been implanted with a computer virus and thus we are becoming a malfunctioning simulation? Could this be the reason for many things going wrong, from the structure of society and politics to the melting Arctic and Antarctic ice?

Yes, it might sound ridiculous, but stop to consider what we have done with technical advancements today. Remember, quantum super-computers now exist and are busy working away. Do you ever have a glitch in reality? Perhaps déjà vu, a synchronicity, a premonition, or just a strange moment wherein an anomaly occurs which simply cannot happen? Perhaps the glitch is in the programming of your emulated reality. The implications are huge regarding the course of human history and everything. In a sense, this is the Theory of Everything!

Whether we are energy-simulations or organic, we are real and free! We bleed. We cry. We laugh. We love. We can affect our reality and adapt. No one should feel that life is any less because of this theory. Life is the same existence as we have always known. Life is life.

When we manage to challenge the game and play with the minds of our creators, perhaps we graduate to becoming one of the creators. This is not unlike spiritual philosophies which tell us we reach Godhead after sufficient experiences as lesser beings. Or (a variation), we are all one small component of God, a pixel of God.

UFO PHOTO COMPETITION WINNER

To win all you had to do was correctly answer a question relating to ufology:

Who invented the term 'Close Encounters' ?

The answer was of course, J Allen Hynek.

Outer Limits Magazine editor Chris Evers and Flying Disk Press owner Philip Mantle wish to thank all who entered the competition and the first to be drawn as the winner, on 1 May 2018 was:

NICK MELLORS

Who correctly responded.

Well done Nick...

Here you can see Nick with his prize.

On being told of his win he was very surprised, "I don't normally win anything" he said.

Keep your eyes open for future competitions.

OLM would like to thank Philip for donating the prize.

Humberside technically as a county no longer exists, and has not for many years, however, the local television and radio broadcaster run by the BBC still calls itself Radio Humberside, and the local police authority are still named Humberside Police. As such the county, while it has long gone, is still strong in everyone's minds.

The area of Humberside was a vast area, covering Hull, East Yorkshire, parts of West Yorkshire and North East Lincolnshire, and was created on April 1st 1974, running until April 1st 1996, and was governed from County Hall at Beverley. The largest township in the county was Kingston Upon Hull, or Hull as it is known to many.

Running right through the county was the Humber Estuary, which was occupied on its north and southern stretches by vast docklands and industrial sites.

It has also been, throughout the years, home to numerous UFO sightings, from the 1801 ball of light that was seen over Hull, to the Scareships sightings of 1909 and 1913.

When the National Archives began releasing their UFO files online I spent months and months poring over case files to find stories about Hull, East Yorkshire, and Grimsby. I ended up so much that I devoted a mammoth chapter to them in Mike Covell Investigates the UFO Files, but only included the Hull cases.

In 2018 I set about typing all the Humberside cases up, and paid particular attention to case files involving Humberside Police and the local media outlets such as Hull Daily Mail and Grimsby Telegraph.

Here are a few of the files from the region.

THE BRANS HOLME ENCOUNTER DEFE-24-1926-1

Bransholme is a massive housing estate that stands to the north-east of Hull city centre, it was once home to the mobile balloon company based at R.A.F. Sutton on Hull, and many of the wartime buildings can still be seen today.

In October 1986 twenty people on Bransholme saw a moon shaped object with a curved cone on the top and red lights flying towards the direction of East Park. The group consisted of two adults and 18 children playing football. They contacted Humberside Police who in turn contacted RAD Binbrook, but the sighting was never explained and remains unsolved.

PATRINGTON'S ROLE DEFE-24-1927

RAF Patrington, known today as RAF Holmpton was one of the primary recording stations for the phenomena in the region, as such whole files, such as AIR 2/19125 feature cases investigated by the staff at the base from civilians, police, and flight personnel. One such case was the sighting of an object heading up the Humber from the mouth towards Hull on December 12th 1987. It was reported to Humberside Police who in turn reported it to the RAF base. It was spherical with flashing lights moving in a zig zag pattern. The case remains unsolved.

TOWER GRANGE GETS INVOLVED DEFE-24-1927

Days after the previous report on December 27th 1987, a couple residing in East Hull contacted Tower Grange Police Station, who in turn contacted the MOD, with reports of a large oblong shaped craft with 50 to 100 bright yellow lights around its edge. The unnamed couple saw the craft for a short period before it flew off.

Today Tower Grange is no longer a police station but has been fitted out and is now occupied by flats.

LARGE RED ORB OVER ROBSON WAY DEFE-24-1928

In February 1988 a taxi driver and his passenger were heading along Robson Way, Sutton, towards Leads Road, when they saw a large orange/red orb hovering silently above the road. It was described as looking like a spherical hot air balloon, without anything slung underneath. The report was sent to Humberside Police who forwarded it on to the MOD.

CRAVEN PARK GETS BUZZED ... BY RED AND WHITE UFO DEFE-24-2032-1-1

Craven Park is home to Hull KR, or Hull Kingston Rovers, known locally as the Robins, and a popular rugby team representing East Hull. Their home ground has gone by many names over the years, but is known to most as Craven Park.

Without a doubt the strangest sighting came in September 1980, when an unnamed individual spotted a red and white round craft hovering above the ground. It was seen for 4 and half minutes, and reported to the Humberside Police, who forwarded the sighting to RAF Binbrook.

HESSLE'S FLYING TRIANGLE DEFE-24-1939

On July 13th 1990 an unnamed woman residing in Hessle spotted a UFO that looked like a giant flying triangle. It was seen for 45 minutes, but stopped and hovered for 30 minutes. It was seen to fly off after emitting a bright flash from its rear end. She ran upstairs and woke up her son and with binoculars they watched it together. She reported the incident to Hessle Police Station and was described as being "a mature woman of sound mind."

PARK STREET'S CIGAR DEFE-24-1940

On December 26th 1990 a large cigar shaped object was seen over Park Street, Hull, with blue and green lights at the rear. The unexplained craft flew west, then south, but hovered near Hull Royal Infirmary. The eyewitness was described as "sounding sober." The incident was reported to Humberside Police, who in turn forwarded it to RAF Waddington, but the case remains unsolved.

HULL SCHOOL TEACHERS ENCOUNTER DEFE-24-1940

In October 1990 a teacher, at Winifred Holtby School, Bransholme, was standing in the car park at 7 o'clock in the evening when he saw an object fly towards the east towards the west. It remained in view for several minutes before vanishing over the horizon. The observer was described as having worked at the school for 9 months, had been at another school for 7 years previous, was married for 5 years, and most importantly, "appears sensible and in complete control of all mental senses."

HUMBER BRIDGE'S ENCOUNTERS DEFE-24-1953/DEFE-24-1989

Humber Bridge features regularly in the reports, one of which occurred in April 1991, when two unidentified flying objects, with blue, red and green lights, flew over the bridge, it was investigated by the Humberside Police with details of the investigation passed on to RAF Waddington.

Another sighting at Humber Bridge took place in July 1997 when a silver cigar shaped object flew over the bridge. It was described in the official files as having sharp pointed wings with a red light on one and a green light on the other. It was said to have hovered by the bridge before shooting off at great speed towards Beverley. Interestingly, the official file goes on to state that nine witnesses saw the UFO and "the names of whom are held by the Hull Daily Mail."

Checks with staff at the Hull Daily Mail have turned up a blank on who took the call, and even tracking down some of the older reporters has not revealed who it was who

HULL DAILY MAIL STAFF GET INVOLVED DEFE-24-1989

UFO SENDS HULL POLICE ON WILD GOOSE CHASE DEFE-24-2022-1-1

This file features a report from Hull via the Ministry of Defence, it states

One of the files features an encounter from October 17th 2002 and is described as a “credible witness UFO sighting. It was sent to the Humberside Police, Incident Handling Unit, Northern Command Centre, Hessle Police Station on what can only be described as an official UFO reporting form!

RESTRICTED

MODUK AIR FOR AFDO.

The incident was logged as log number 70 of 17/10/02 at 0239 hours when a member of the public in East Hull claimed to have seen two large flying lights near BP Saltend, seemingly communicating with each other through flashes. Humberside Police despatched officers, one of which saw it from Hedon, the other officers from BP, and one in Thorngumbald. All described the lights as looking like stars but stopping and moving at great speeds. Despite this, and an investigation by the Humberside Police Helicopter, the file claims that the sighting was nothing more than a star...or satellite...possibly effected by the nearby gasses emitted from the chemical works!

SCHAFFNER'S LAST FLIGHT DEFE-24-1971

This is a file made up of reports from across the UK, but features a large section on Captain William Schaffner, who was killed when his Lightening plane ditched in the North Sea. The accident was later linked to UFO's and as such both the Grimsby Telegraph and the Hull Daily Mail featured a series of two page spreads on the incident on October 22nd 1992 and October 23rd 1992.

This file features all the pages from the Hull Daily Mail on this incident, spread across four pages of the file.

LIGHTS IN THE SKY AND MORE ON SCHAFFNER DEFE-24-1972

This file also features newspaper clippings, and contains the Captain William Schaffner articles from the Hull Daily Mail. It also contains an article from the Hull Daily Mail, dated Tuesday November 3rd 1992.

The article, entitled “Making sense of lights in the sky” features the story of Mrs June Cooper, who saw lights over the region in 1970. It goes on to link her sighting with that of Captain William Schaffner, and his ill fated flight. She claims that she believed that she saw the UFO's that brought him down off the coast of Flamborough.

This file was one of many that was linked to a series of sightings seen over the city on the 25th, 27th of July, and 4th of August 1997. A number of sightings were reported to the offices of the Hull Daily Mail, which in turn were reported to the Ministry of Defence and R.A.F. Waddington.

LOCAL NEWSPAPER CLIPPINGS IN THE FILES DEFE-31-182-1

This file features a report from the Hull Daily Mail dated August 17th 1993, entitled "Sightings of UFO's on the up," in which it states that UFO sightings in Hull and East Yorkshire are on the increase. The claim came during a conference where a local UFO expert, named as Chris Lawson, went on record to state that the number of sightings being reported by eyewitnesses is on the increase. It goes on to include eyewitness accounts from Withernsea, and talks about national and international reports of cattle mutilations.

The file also features an article from the Hull Daily Mail, dated Friday May 12th 1993, again featuring Chris Lawson, in which it claims that UFO reports across Hull, East Yorkshire, and across the world are not only increasing, but the number of genuine reports are on the increase.

Finally this file features a newspaper clipping from the Hull Daily Mail, dated September 2nd 1993, but it is nothing more than a review of the television show named Strange But True, hosted by Michael Aspel.

THE IMMINGHAM LIGHTS

Another file is dated January 2nd 1997, and features a report that was reported to Humberside Police in Immingham. It mentions that Humberside Police in turn contacted the Ministry of Defence with regards to the strange sighting.

The observer had seen a large bright white light with multiple lights around it over the Humber Estuary near Immingham, it flew up the Humber towards Stallingborough before heading in the direction of Grimsby. Such was the concern the report states that the police, Ministry of Defence, and R.A.F. at Waddington be informed of the situation.

The document, which is a stand alone document in the file with no explanation before and no comments afterwards shows that the fax lines between the Police, Ministry of Defence, and R.A.F. were not working that night, so further action was delayed until 08.00 the following morning!

MORE STRANGE LIGHTS

In another file sits a lonely document that backs up the Immingham Lights story. This file features a report from Scunthorpe dated January 2nd 1997, the same night as the Immingham Lights sighting. The one page document states that an eyewitness in Scunthorpe has seen a large bright object that continually changes colour, and is high in the sky and hovering. It occasionally looks like a large star, and can be seen with the naked eye.

The report goes on to state that the police, Ministry of Defence, and R.A.F. Waddington be informed, but the officials believe that the eyewitness is actually watching the North Star. This explanation soon falls apart, however, when the eyewitness informed them that the object was first seen south of his position, and at the time of the phone call was moving.

GRIMSBY POLICE STATION'S INVOLVEMENT

All the files regarding Grimsby, Immingham, and Scunthorpe were reported by the eyewitnesses to Humberside Police. These calls were routed to the Humberside Police, Southern Communications Centre, and investigated by the Incident Handling Branch at Grimsby Police Station, Victoria Street.

All of the files regarding these sightings that appear in the National Archives UFO files, all feature fax covering letters bearing Humberside Police's badge, address, and contact details. They all appear to have been sent to the Ministry of Defence Secretariat, Air Staff 2A, which was an office previously headed by author, researcher and freelance journalist, Nick Pope.

MORE SIGHTINGS

Another document in the UFO files relates to a sighting made over Grimsby on January 28th 2009. The report, which is a typed up document, states that there was a light in the sky at 22.10 that night, but it had other lights on it that were "dripping off it," into the ground. It made no noise and the eyewitnesses ruled out a firework and the police helicopter. The three eyewitnesses first saw it as they drove along, but they stopped the car, exited the vehicle, and watched it hover. It was last seen flying off towards Western Primary School.

The sighting was reported to Humberside Police and the Ministry of Defence, and gleaned a written response from the Royal Air Force, in which it stated that the Government does not investigate UFO's and does not believe that this sighting, or any other, is of defence significance.

CONCLUSION

Humberside has seen a lot of activity throughout the years, there are many more files with many more sightings, stories, and accounts of strange structured craft flying over the region. There are also other accounts from the local media, with the Hull Daily Mail and Grimsby Telegraph publishing numerous stories on craft overflying the area.

Add to that the reports that were submitted by Humberside Police from their Northern Command Centre in Hull, and their Southern Command Centre in Grimsby, there have been numerous reports typed up on official headed paper from their offices and sent to the Ministry of Defence

But it's not what's in the files but what's not. Without straying into the grounds of conspiracy theories, the local newspapers often published sightings by readers, who had contacted the newspaper to spread the word, and yet only 10% of those stories which were published appeared in the National Archives UFO files.

I believe we have scraped away at the tip of the iceberg, and there is still yet more to be seen.

Humberside Police Incident Log Number 70 of 17/10/02 timed at 0239hrs Thursday 17/10/02 refers

At 0239 hrs on Thursday 17th October 2002 a member of the public contacted Humberside Police to report seeing a UFO. The adult male caller wished to remain anonymous but it is believed he lives in Hull (eastern area of the City). Whilst making the report the caller stated he could see two lit objects in the sky - one over the Eastern Cemetery, Preston Road, Hull and the other one over B.P. Saltend. He stated the objects appeared to be 'communicating' with each other. He described one of the objects as having a blue light in the middle, a white light and two green lights with a red light going around the top. The object was spinning around and hovering. The caller was looking through binoculars.

Local Police Officers were alerted and sighted what they believed to be the object being reported by the caller. The below report is from two Police Officers rather than from the initial caller who was reluctant to become involved. Other officers also saw the 'object'.

a) Police Officers involved - PC [REDACTED] and PC [REDACTED]
b) 0254 hrs 17/10/02 - duration of approx 45 minutes
c) Appeared as the size of a 'normal' bright star but of different colours - blue, green, red and white
d) Viewed from various locations in the Hedon area (east of Hull) from a police vehicle
e) Viewed with naked eye
f) First viewed by officers to be in the sky over B.P. Chemicals Plant at Saltend near Hull and then in the Thorgumbald area
g) Angular elevation of approx 45 degrees
h) Distance from observers is difficult to estimate (but not near to them)

The SPI Files!

By Malcolm Robinson

I would like to bring to your attention three very strange cases which equally on their own merit, clearly show something extraordinary and worthy of your attention. Cases like these truly make interest in the UFO subject, all the more worthwhile and I would like to share these cases with you through the pages of this magazine.

OK, first up is the strange case of Mark who came forward and informed me of a bizarre event that happened in his life which happened during the summer of 2004. In his own words, this is what he had to say.

CASE ONE: The Marks of a UFO Abduction?

"This is my second attempt by email to tell you of my event! I'm used to this as every time I try to tell someone something goes wrong. With this email I just wanted to explain a little bit about me first. After the event life was never the same again and indeed my whole family thought I'd gone crazy. My wife left me and I've seen spirits since my UFO abduction and had odd events that frankly sound crazy too me. Let's just say that visits of strange creatures easily dismissed. I've become a conspiracy theorist in the sense that I believe little official events that I'm told. I promise I will not embellish or make the events more interesting".

"I was asked by my parents to house sit and look after my gran while they went to see my brother in Guildford so I went on the Friday to the house in Rawnsley which is about 1 mile from Cannock chase. I had dinner we chatted and I had a pint then went to bed early as I was tired. My wife joined me and we watched TV for a while in bed then I fell asleep happy and content with no worries or stress, next thing I know I'm awake and it's around 3am and I'm in a fetal position shaking violently and crying uncontrollably like a child. I turn to get solace from my partner and as I do so I now notice at the window a green mist or fog that looks almost like a laser show with smoke but without lines from a laser. Then as a memory I hear the words, "We won't hurt you we just need some DNA as ours is corrupt". I can see in my mind's eye two huge black eyes right next to my face and then suddenly the green mist quickly retreated. At this point I wish that I had run to the window but I was frozen with fear. My wife stirred and asked me what was wrong. I couldn't answer and was still shaking and obviously in shock. I'm not the kind of guy who goes into shock and I've never been in that state before or since. The next day I was sure that what occurred during the night was real and I felt generally OK. No one ever believed me and that hurt that my own family could think I was either lying or ill. I've never had nightmares like this or been effected in the ways it has done to my life. Interestingly a month or so later, a growth came up on rear of my skull just below the skull in the middle, (see photograph and close up below) I ride a motorcycle and as this growth grew larger it caught on my crash helmet and bled often for hours.

So after a trip to the doctors he arranged to have it removed at a local hospital under local anesthetic. The day came and I went, strangely I had to fight the feeling to get up and run from hospital and was in a state of mild fear. But I went in for the operation area and that first time the anesthetic didn't work and I felt it. The doctor stopped and said don't worry and injected another type of anesthetic and it was cut off. Now I'm sorry if it all sounds X-Files but I have to say this and you make up your own mind. The nurse turns to doctor and says "I will send it off for analysis" but the doctor very quickly and in a loud voice said "NO just dispose of it". I know and believe that there must be so much more that has happened to me but its blocked via shock or something else. Hope you don't think it's too crazy and hope this account helps you. Good luck Malcolm".

OK here we have a gentleman who has had numerous UFO encounters only this time, one particular incident has truly left its mark, (if you excuse the pun). We may ask as we have done many times, what the bloody hell is going on with these abductions?

Many Ufologists have their own ideas and opinions, including me, but one thing is for sure, there does not appear to be any sign of these UFO abductions abating and I dearly hope that for this witness things improve and hopefully his occasional visits stop entirely.

CASE TWO. UFO or a bird?

We at Strange Phenomena Investigations receive many alleged UFO photographs the vast majority of which turn out to have natural explanation. Several years ago a gentleman came forward with his testimony and photograph and asked us what we thought. Here are the circumstances surrounding the taking of the photograph which was in Northern Scotland.

In his own words he states;

"Hi Malcolm, I was walking in a party of 7 hikers on the 25th October 2014 Tackling Ben Vorlich at Loch Earn head in treacherous conditions with heavy rain and strong winds, we set off from the car park about 11am. We finally got back down about 2.30pm, the weather cleared when coming back down from the Mountain.

On turning back I captured this picture (see left hand side of the page) from the single track road looking towards Ben Vorlich in the distance of the photo. I was randomly taking scenery shots with phone before heading home and not spending too much attention to specific distant objects. It was only when I was back home and up loading photos onto my PC that I noticed the strange image in the sky.

The phone used was a BlackBerry Q10 camera specification. 8 megapixel auto-focus, back side illumination for better low light performance. 5-element F2.2 lens. Dedicated ISP with 64MB frame buffer, image stabilisation. Enhanced super resolution digital zoom (5x)"

Well my initial thoughts on this one, more so because of the distance, was that all the camera had captured was a bird frozen in flight. This is common and makes up quite a massive chunk of alleged UFO photographs. Remember too, that the witness did not see anything in the sky whilst taking the photograph. My other consideration was that it might also have been one of those RPV's, in other words, a drone. This would be the perfect area to try one of these amazing devices out. Or the third option might well be a UFO whether that is a craft from another world or is something above a bird frozen in flight or a drone, who knows. I present the photograph here though for your consideration.

CASE THREE. The Brightlingsea Alien!

INTRODUCTION.

Let me start by saying that the photograph to me looks like a massive fake! It just looks too good to be true, but although it 'looks clearly like a fake', I don't want to fall into the trap of throwing the baby out with the bathwater and I hear my own favourite words which are, "Malc, just because something look and sounds ridiculous, doesn't mean to say that it is so"

OK, THE WITNESS AND HIS TESTIMONY

The witness in this amazing story is one Frank Hyde. Frank is 76 years of age and comes from Brighlingsea, near Colchester, in the county of Essex in England. My first initial contact with Frank came on Wednesday 26th August 2015 where he called me after seeing my full page article regarding my work on UFO's which was featured in the Sun newspaper of August 25th.

EVENTS

Let me tell you this, if you can get a word on with him on the phone you'll be doing well! He has so much to say it's simply astonishing. There have been so many various bizarre things happening in his home that he wants to tell you them all in 10 seconds, hence his rapid talking on the phone. Anyway, here are some of the bits and pieces that I managed to pick up from my conversation with him. (I did eventually manage to get some questions in when he finally drew breath!)

(a) There was an old lady who lived in the house prior to Frank and she was considered locally a bit of a Witch and claimed to see things, small people etc.

(b) Frank woke up one night and saw a strange 'being' crouched up next to a chair. On another occasion he saw another one outside his house looking towards the left.

(c) He also said that these 'beings' walk through things. Frank is Ex Military.

Frank claims to see a lot of little people in and around his home.

There were 3 'beings' at the bottom of his bed.

Frank found two strange marks on his right foot which he has taken photographs of. His right foot still shows the marks they appear like a cross with an M underneath it. (I await these photos)

Frank woke up on one occasion to see two puncture marks in his ear. He has photo. (I await this photo)

On another occasion Frank woke up and his face was bright red and his face had straight lines across his cheeks. These marks were not made by the covers of his bed.

He has photographs of what appears to be three small toed foot prints on his carpet!

Frank has kept a journal of all the bizarre events in his home (I await to see this)

He now takes all these bizarre events with a pinch of salt. His family members and friends all laugh at him so he has now stopped mentioning the events to them.

He has his own views as to what is happening of which he believes there is a Parallel Universe and what is happening in the world is not E.T. based. Whoever is behind the incidents are more advanced than us, vibration & frequency. He has three daughters aged between 52 – 40.

OK, THE PHOTO

OK so bear in mind he is telling us that there has been a lot of bizarre activity going on in his house for weeks. On the day of the photo he was getting ready to go out to visit his wife in the hospital as she was in having her hip replaced. So there he is in the living room and he bends down to pick up his car keys from a small table in the living room. As he does so, he feels something/one brushing by him but 'nothing was there'. Knowing that something was amiss and in light of all the strange things going on in the house, he quickly got his iPhone and took one photograph in the direction of where something had brushed by him (going towards the back living room window)

Now you or I would have quickly looked to see what we had photographed but owing to the fact that he was up against time and he was late to see his wife, he put the camera back in his pocket and raced out the house and jumped into the car and went straight to the hospital. (bear in mind, his wife was in his thoughts all the time owing to this big hip replacement)

It wasn't until a few weeks later when he was at a family gathering and he got his phone out to take some photos, that he noticed the bizarre image in his living room. He showed the image to those gathered but they more or less laughed at him so he never spoke about it again.

MALCOLM'S THOUGHTS

OK. I've spoken to the chap twice now and aim to do so again fairly soon. And you know what? I believe him. He absolutely and categorically denies that this is a fake. He assures me that the phone has been in his possession all this time and that no one has had access to his phone. (I asked the question could anyone have gotten access to his phone and inserted an alien app from the web) As I say, he strongly, MOST strongly denies this. I actually believe him even although this image looks so fake that it's laughable. But again, should we laugh at something just because we think it's fake?

There are so many app programmes out there (some of which I have been onto on the internet to see if I can match the same image, but with no success so far) I noticed some pixilation/noise around the figure which is always a strong indication that an extra image has been inserted onto the top of another photo.

Of course, there is another way that a similar image can be viewed like this, and that is to paint an image on, or,

The 'being' for want of a better word, looks as if it is either dematerialising or re-materialising (pure speculation on my part) and if you look at the 'being's left arm it looks as though it is being held up by a few small strings of something!

MALCOLM'S CONCLUDING THOUGHTS

So, there we have it. A photograph that looks like a fake, or looks like one of those alien apps that you can get from the web. But is it so! I look to the readers of another magazine to see if they could search the web as well and see if you can find anything that resembles this photograph and if you do and find something similar then 'case closed' But like I said earlier, sometimes things can look and sound so ridiculous that we have a nasty habit of ignoring them. So for the moment the jury is out unless someone 'out there' can shed any further light on it.

Inside the Lightning Ball: Scientific Study of Lifelong UFO Experiencers By Irena McCammon Scott, PhD

(author of UFOs Today: 70 Years of Lies, Misinformation and Government Cover-up)

While driving past a woods, I saw my car's inside suddenly lite up in green. I saw no beam, but a strange globe was nearby flashing a spectrum of colours. What was going on?

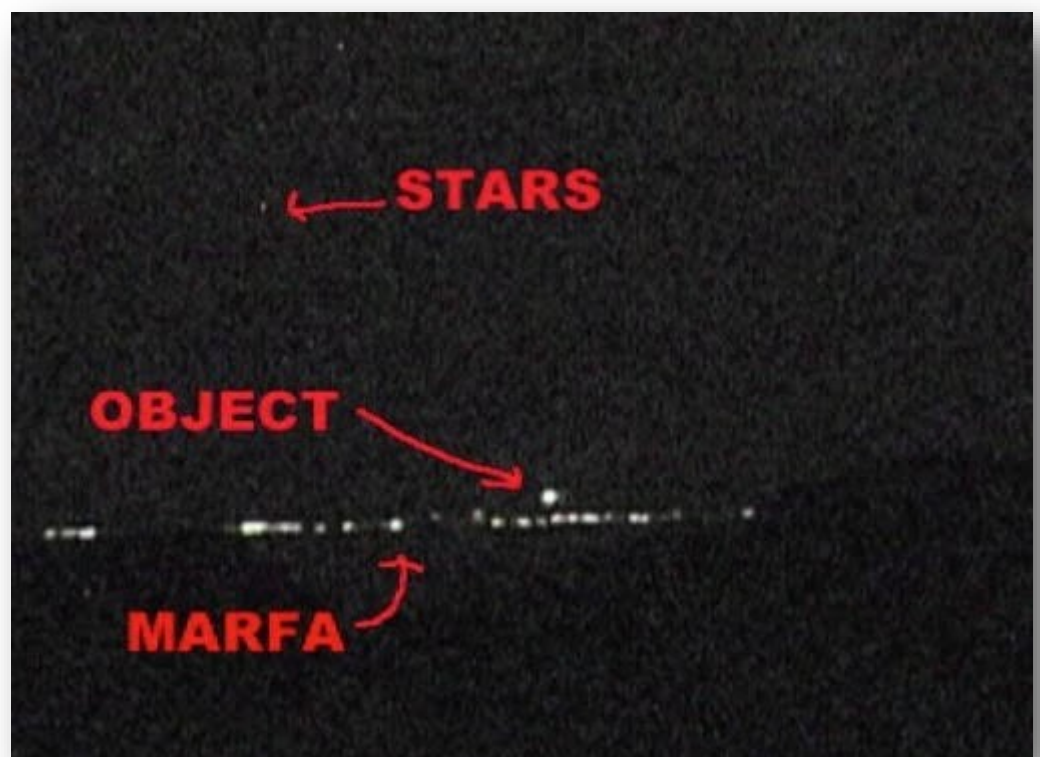

There is one overriding reason why UFO phenomena such as this are discredited. That is the standard method of refuting UFO phenomenon, which consists of the claim that no scientists see UFOs and that there are no studies in the peer-reviewed scientific literature. Thus, science discredits UFO phenomena and claims it does not exist. But is this correct?

This book refutes both contentions and does so on scientific grounds.

My career has been in scientific work: a PhD from the University of Missouri College of Veterinary Medicine, post-doctoral research at Cornell University, a professorship at St. Bonaventure University, and teaching and research at the Ohio State University Medical School and the University of Nevada. I also had a PhD-level (GS-11) position with the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), a Physical Scientist/Cartographer position in the Aerospace Center in St. Louis, Missouri, and others. And I have worked in additional crucial institutions involved in the UFO field—Battelle Memorial Institute, and Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

And I see UFOs. This book also includes discussions I have had with additional scientists who experienced sightings, thus scientists do see UFOs. I have also submitted information about UFO events to peer-reviewed scientific organizations that was accepted and published in scientific journals. Perhaps I am the only person to have done this.

Thus this book shows that science does not discredit UFO phenomena.

These experiences have been investigated/written about by some of the top Ufologists, such as Jenny Randles, Budd Hopkins, Dr. Hynek, and Kathleen Marden. This book includes detailed discussions and analysis with the above experts, and Leo Sprinkle, Whitley Strieber, Harley Rutledge and many others. These discussions included missing time, abduction, strange lights, and poltergeist phenomena. None of the objects that were investigated have been identified.

I have had other witnesses to these events. In a maybe one-and-only event, my sister and I had an early childhood and an adult sighting together and thus can supply unique information on repeat witness and lifelong sightings.

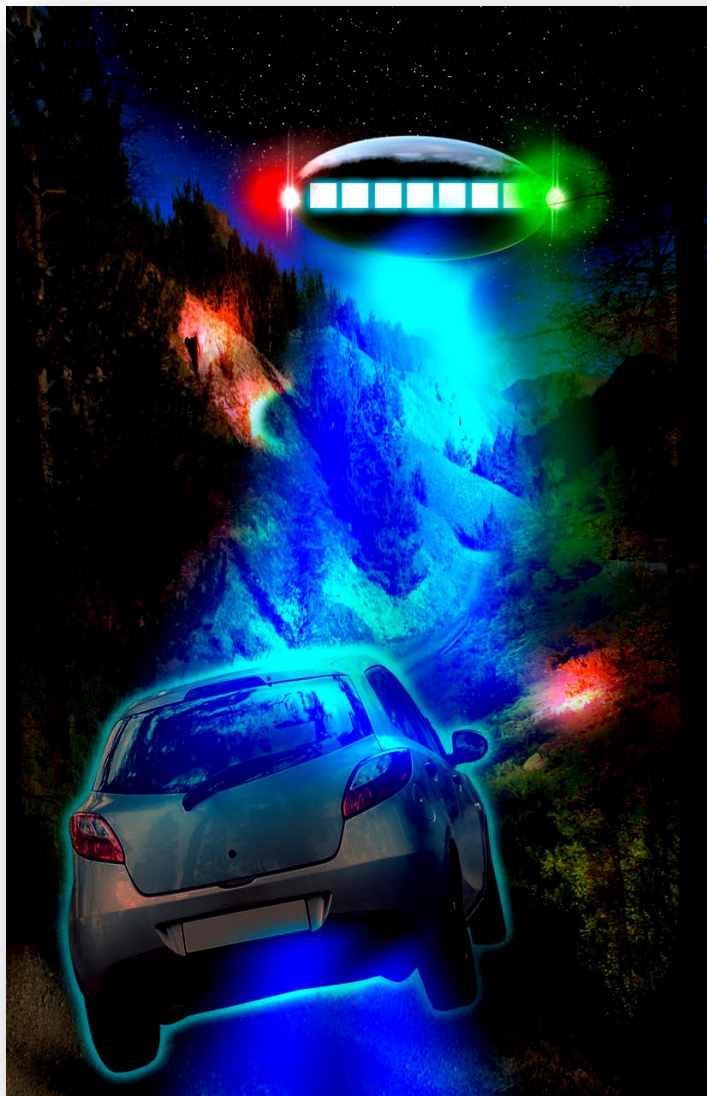

Budd Hopkins thought we had experienced abduction, tried to hypnotize me, and interviewed my sister's family with the chief witness he presented in Intruders: The Incredible Visitations at Copley Wood. Others have said we may be contactees.

As examples of scientist's experiences, this book describes these events in much detail including my contacts with scientists to help in the analysis.

These experiences began in early childhood, when in a clear summer night, my sister and I woke up simultaneously with something flying in our room that seemed to be controlled. After we watched it with curiosity, we both suddenly became terrified and fled shrieking. A number of relatives remember this to this day. It was several years after this before we had even heard of UFOs.

A following experience, in 1986 near Boston, consisted of two objects—a larger one that appeared to have large windows and a smaller one that was on or near the ground and flashed a spectrum of several colours. This sighting lasted 1-2 hours, but the aftereffects lasted longer. During the event, we experienced close encounters with both objects, watching the large object circle an airport, a strange man, a car chase in which we might have been killed, and driving on a deserted road. We also experienced strange lights inside our car, and we may have had missing time. I took a photograph of the object that was accepted and published in an American Association for the Advancement of Science society journal. I was working for the DIA in photographic analysis with above Top Secret security clearances at the time so I did not report it then, but took extensive notes immediately afterwards that are in the book.

This sighting had unique similarities with other area sightings including, the Encounter at Buff Ledge objects, the Betty and Barney Hill abduction, the Sharon sighting, and also possibly the Coyne helicopter object. This book contains discussion of these similarities with scientists and Ufologists. Portions of these sightings were reanalysed.

Another event was a daytime sighting of a rotating object over Ohio State University and the Columbus, Ohio, airport. This sighting occurred several years before the noted Chicago O'Hare Airport sighting and resembled it. The sighting lasted about 20 minutes, had a number of witnesses, including five who were or became university professors and who made detailed drawings and descriptions the next day. During the sighting, I called a scientist at Battelle Memorial Institute, who also investigates UFOs, and gave a real-time description. He called the airport, but they said they did not see anything although the object was in their airspace. The object flew against the wind and possibly changed shape during the sighting.

Another event that was investigated was a burn mark on our family farm. It was in an alfalfa field with the plants standing but burned into the roots. There were no prints around it and it was in a place no one could see from an inhabitation or get to without the farmer's permission. Witness reports to its appearance and photographs are included. The soil was analysed by mass spectrometry, but there was no evidence of how it was made. It occurred in the same time frame as the one reported by Budd Hopkins in Intruders and he was interested in it.

Other events included close encounters with ball lightning. I had seen a lightning ball when I was five years old, and had several similar experiences later. In one instance I was in Texas on a deck located on the rim between two enormous craters with my video camera on. Suddenly a lightning bolt hit right beside me. I would have been killed except that the deck was insulated. There was a huge instant whiteout and a number of other unusual effects such as electricity from the strike shorting up a tower guy wire. Because I was in the whiteout, I may have been inside a lightning ball. Another deck at this location over looked Marfa, Texas, which is noted for its Marfa lights that some think are UFOs. I made another video of an object that hovered near Marfa. This might have been Marfa light/Earthquake/Earthlight/UFO phenomena.

Because of these events, I also examined information about ball lightning and compared this to UFO material.

Additional facets that are analysed and may provide information about how UFOs work or are composed include: new photographic analysis, technical examination of reports of lights shinned on people before missing time events, laser technology, electromagnetic phenomena, and psychic events.

It includes new Roswell information about witnesses discussed in my UFOs Today: 70 Years of Lies, Misinformation and Government Cover-up. It also contains seismographic analysis of a mysterious sound heard throughout a portion of the US during the 1973 international UFO wave, study of lighting associated with UFO phenomena that is invisible to humans, correlations such as UFO activity and sunspot cycles, why UFO photography is difficult, and scientific proof that UFO phenomena exists. And I present some of the synchronicities that also helped to bring me into the UFO field.

The Tarot; 78 Cards That Tell the Tale

By. Shawn M. Cohen, BSc. Metaphysics, L.V.N.

The Fool Card begins the journey, it is card number 0. We come into this world naked, we are filled with our ancestor's DNA and our own soul's dreams, sacred contracts, karmic relationships, scenarios ahead and our own heart's true desire to find meaning and purpose in the life ahead. Thus begins the journey of all souls, when they enter a body, choosing the parents and the many scripts ahead, some well written, well trodden and some unique and maverick to that soul. With each life time a chance to get ahead; to grow spiritually, experience what the soul has not in other lives or to refine what was before, moving towards Mastery.

The next Major Arcana Card we meet is The Magician Card number 1. Within this card lies the many tools we will need along our sacred journey. To be prepared, to get ready for the greatest adventure we need Knowledge, the skills and tools of our trade, the connection between Heaven and Earth. The Magician's creed, "to be on the Earth but not of the Earth" and "As above so below".

His red cloak tells us he is all man; awake and aware sexually and his Wand, Sword, Pentacle and Cup on his wooden table show us his vast knowledge of the human condition. The Wand = the element of Fire; fertility, passion, intuition, artistic endeavors and will. The Sword=, the element of Air; thoughts, ideas and ideals, communication, eloquence and wit, knowledge. The Pentacle=the element of Earth; stability, skill and craft, money, the body, property, material world, grounding. And the Cup=the element of Water; emotions, feelings, spirituality, psychic ability, love, romantic emotions, universal love.

The flowers represent the feminine aspect creating the opposite (the Yin to his Yang) as he is the masculine. The red rose represents love and the Archangel Michael who is protection. The Lilies are the feminine and also represent Archangel Raphael, the Archangel of Knowledge and Healing. The Magician is the Animus. The belt around his waist is the ouroboros, the snake eating its tail, meaning life is eternal. The figure of eight above his head is the same message: life is eternal. His hand movements point to the sky and the earth. "As above so below". One has a scroll in it, the Torah, the sacred words of God. He seeks knowledge and holds it for others to find.

If the cards are shuffled all 78 of them, with the querent asking in their mind, "What about my future?" Or "How is my love life looking?" or "Will I get that job?" The energy of these thoughts (thoughts are energy!) can surround the cards, which in turn find the right placement for those questions and more to be answered. It is the mystery of what Carl Jung, the great Psychologist, called, "Synchronicity" which brings all the right efforts of the shuffler, the person's energy, their Higher Self and the Tarot Reader's knowledge, skill and Higher Self and their own Guides. (We all work with our Higher Self and Guides.)

The Tarot Reader will usually have a bevy of Tarot spreads at her or his disposal. They choose what feels right or what they usually do or their own favourite and place the cards out, in a certain pattern. Each card will tell a story. Read separately they will tell a tale, together with the other cards, they tell a very detailed story, maybe even a life story or a journey into the past, present or future. How is this even possible? How do these cards know the future, let alone the past and present? This is the mystery of the Tarot! But they do and it works! The reader must be skilled enough, educated and trained and have experience enough to read each card, both direct and reverse and also alone or together with all the other cards and the myriad of stories that could come up are like rays of the sun, many. Her own Psychic and Mediumistic abilities also come into play...very much so, to get names, details of dates and also messages given from spirit for the client.

The Major Arcana, represent the Journey of the Fool to Enlightenment.

Every Picture Tells a Story! The next card the Fool meets is card number 2, The High Priestess. She is his inner female, his intuition, his Anima and she serves him well, if he learns to listen to her. She will guide him without fault, he will learn to trust her, she holds wisdom, and her wisdom is secretive, you must seek her out and know that she is a sacred part of himself.

The Tarot works in Archetypes so his next two cards are his parents. The Empress, Card number 3, is The Wife, the Mother, she is pregnant with possibilities and she

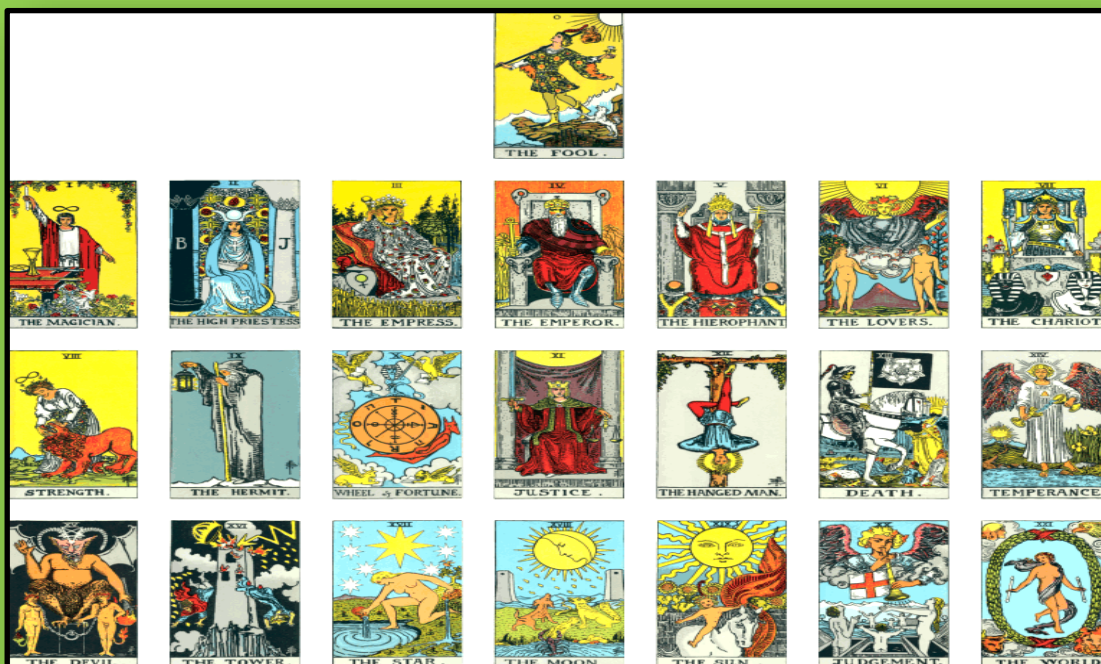

two. Once the Fool has grown up, he takes a wife. Moving into the other Major Arcana cards, he must navigate his way emotionally, Card number 7, The Chariot whose chariot is drawn by sphinxes, one black and one white...representing the emotional cartography of the land. One choice will bring you happiness, one will bring you sorrow, but you are the one who steers the Chariot of your heart.

Hence card number 8, a number of success, titled; Strength is talking about inner strength, not might leading to right! But the strength which comes when our feminine side (The Anima) tames and works in cooperation with the lion or ego/pride side of us, also known as the Animus. Yin to the Yang as represented by the sign of infinity about the maiden's head. Mountains in the Tarot are always associated with wisdom and many cards show a path to that mountain, another metaphor for walking this path, one step, one archetype and one day at a time until we reach the last card, number 21, The World. The four fixed signs of the Zodiac surround the wreath of Victory where the Hermaphrodite stands in honour and glory with the purple sash (a royal colour and the crown chakra colour) and the scroll of knowledge accumulated along the Fool's journey.

The 4 fixed signs are; the Lion (Leo, Fire) element of courage, heart, passion, creativity.

The Angel pouring water on humanity (Aquarius, Air) represents love as she is Venus and she also represents abundance. His father can be seen in the Empress, card number 4. A strong male presence which is successful, is a great goal for the young Fool, who is only age 16 and just left home for the first time. We are all the Fool every time we try something new or go on a new adventure. Naive and somewhat pigheaded, head in the clouds, the Fool soon learns to listen to the wisdom of these elders and sacred archetypes within. But he wanders on and meets Card number 5, the Hierophant. His own religious upbringing can also influence his choices as well as his moral fiber. 5 is the number of Change and it asks us to listen to a Higher Calling, Viewpoint or seek out spiritual advice. Onto the next Major Arcana card number 6, The Lovers. Steeped in tradition of having the Archangel Raphael bless the Union of Adam and Eve or knowledge, The Bull, (Taurus, Earth) material world, work, and The Eagle (the higher energy of Scorpio) the soul's growth, healing, desires and psychic ability. The cycle ends, the figure like a baby being born again through the womb and we start again at the Fool, innocent, naive and ready to go once more into the fray.

Once we get through the Major Arcana, symbolically, metaphorically, we grow up, learn and experience so much, that wisdom comes upon us. We begin to see we are much more than a boy or a girl and our parent's child! We see the wise soul, or the new soul learning how to become wise through endless experiences, romance, heartbreak, failure in business, success in business, health or the challenge of illness, completing our education or flunking out, making wonderful kindred spirit friends or being a loner. Finding the "Boon", as Joseph Campbell spoke of in his best selling book on Myths and their places in our lives, "The Hero with a Thousand Faces". We are all the Heroes and Heroines of our own personal lives, who venture forth from birth to death to see just how much we are made of, how much we can challenge ourselves, learn, grow, experience and how far we can delve into our souls and bring out the "gold" like a good alchemist! The Minor Arcana, all 56 cards, fill in these details.

The "plot" thickens with the 56 Minor Arcana as they show us the way, the byways and highways of life. They look like a set of playing cards with their Knight, Queen and King and the Joker (The Fool) but playing cards originated from the Tarot. In Italy, even today, you can still see playing cards with Tarot imagery on them. These 4 suits are known as the "Court Cards" and they go by the 4 elements: Fire=Wands, which is all about passion, creativity and endurance. Earth=Pentacles, which is all about money, land, the physical body, the earth itself, such as food, land, trees, acres, animals, and property, wealth or lack of it. Air=Swords, Mind, thoughts, thinking, activity of learning, speaking, orators, teachers, writers, actors and mimics, positive and negative thoughts, memories, genius and illiteracy. Water=Cups, emotions, love, hate, sadness, hurt, betrayal, happiness, joy, fun, success and romance, true love, twin flames, soul mates, pets, those we have loved and lost, my cup runneth over with joy, love, happiness.

Now begins the reading. The cards are shuffled enough until the querent says, "Stop" and the Tarot reader will cut the deck in 3 piles, asking the querent, "Which one should I pick up first? Pile 1, Pile 2, or Pile 3?" Which deck of Tarot the Tarot reader uses is her choice and there are many, as many as thousands out there to choose from. But the Traditional Decks will have 22 Major Arcana (which are numbered 0-21) and the 56 Minor Arcana (Ace to King of Wands, Ace to King of Swords, Ace to King of Pentacles, Ace to King of Cups.)

The Tarot Reader will usually have a bevy of Tarot spreads at her or his disposal. They choose what feels right or what they usually do or their own favourite and place the cards out, in a certain pattern. Each card will tell a story. Read separately they will tell a tale, together with the other cards, they tell a very detailed story, maybe even a life story or a journey into the past, present or future. How is this even possible? How do these cards know the future, let alone the past and present? This is the mystery of the Tarot! But they do and it works! There is much magic in the Tarot, stemming way back from its origin and Kabbalah. The reader must be skilled enough, educated and trained and have experience enough to read each card, both direct and reverse and also alone or together with all the other cards and the myriad of stories that could come up are like rays of the sun, many. Her own Psychic and Mediumistic abilities also come into play...very much so, to get names, details of dates and also messages given from spirit, whether Angels or Loved Ones who have passed over, even pets in Heaven, for the client.

Now begins the shuffling, which is an energetic experience for the client. She/he shuffles the cards, all 78 and makes sure they think about what it is they want to know. The Tarot Reader asks them to concentrate, put their energy into the cards (thoughts are things!) so think about what it is you want to know and try not to ruffle the cards like Las Vegas! A good, thorough, gentle shuffle will do! "Now hand me the cards as you want me to read them", the Reader says to the querent. Why? Because the reader does not want to turn them upside down or right side up changing the meaning of the cards and the entire reading. Cards have distinct meanings both upright and reverse.

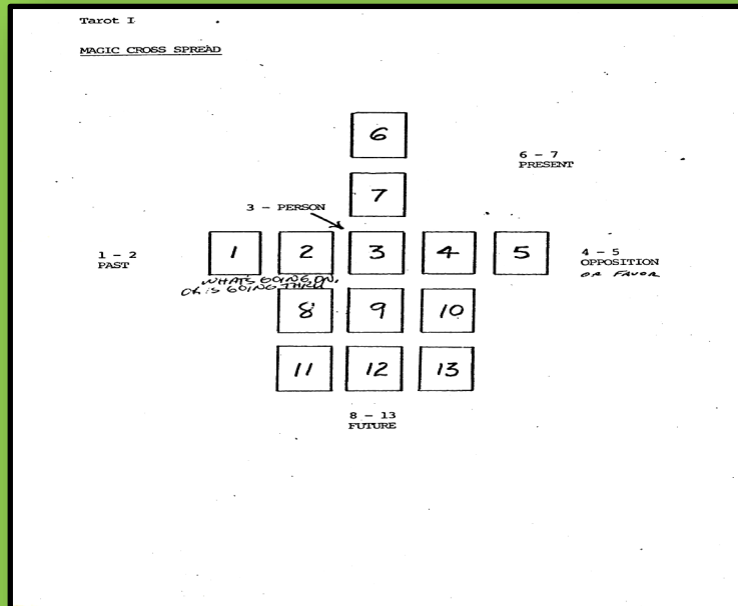

Next the reader will spread the cards out, also called "The Spread" and there are hundreds of traditional and new ones out there but many a Tarot reader creates their own too. The pattern also means something. Here is an example of one of many Tarot Spreads:

The Tarot Reader lays out the cards carefully, taking one from the top of the deck, and turning over each one to place in the prescribed, laid out pattern. Never flipping them around but as they come out. Studying the pattern and each individual card in its placement whether up or down, and how they relate to each other is the reading. Seen with true Mastery of the Tarot, a Psychic Medium Tarot Reading can give names, dates, help from Heaven, bringing messages from Angels, Spirit and Loved Ones who have passed, along with infinite possibilities of time, place, experiences ahead. Past, Present and Future are observed and with each new turn of the card, comes more information. In the end, the client is happy, satisfied and ready to face their future! The magic of the Tarot lies in the interpretation, how skilled the reader is and psychic tuning in, while also knowing each card and how they are read together and separately. # Touching Neverland

By Paul Sinclair

I found the following account one of the most difficult to explain, that must seem like a crazy thing to say in a book full of the weird and unimaginable, but it is the truth. And no matter how much I think about what happened it still stands alone in its uniqueness.

Did I touch the outer-nowhere?

It was November the 4th 2017 when we went to Danes Dyke on one of our usual walks, me Mary and Wolfy. It was mid afternoon when we arrived, 2.45pm to be exact and the day was fresh and clear. I parked the car and paid £1.40 for 2 hours parking and we set off in the direction of Dark Wood.

As with most strange experiences we don't choose when they happen, they happen without warning and cannot be created or predicted. That is why science doesn't work in the outer-nowhere, I believe what we perceive as the real world has other worlds overlapping that are just as real and vibrant as our own.

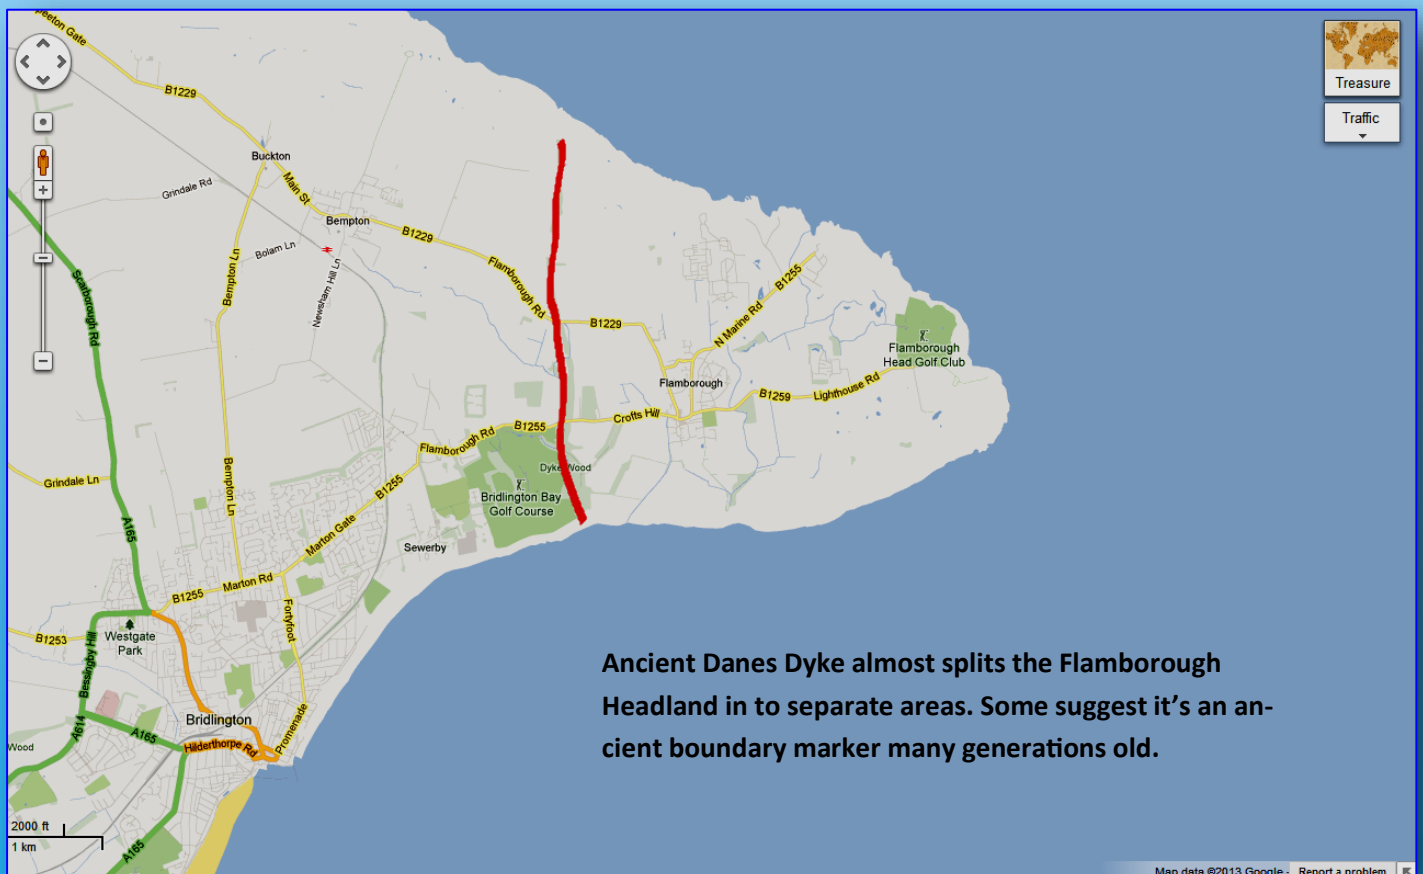

I need to stress that I am using the word overlapping loosely for areas where situations occur of which we have little or no understanding. Any number of words would fit because we have no idea how the process works. The areas of high strangeness, the overlaps are doorways allowing other realities to step into our world. A higher science is at work and all we can do is watch like rabbits caught in its headlights. It could be pointless trying to understand something that works with tools we have not yet even dreamed about.

I'm sure many things are at work to create the conditions for these perfect symmetries of strangeness to manifest and interact. Human emotion being one of the keys, location being another.

It is undeniable that some areas are renowned for unexplained phenomena. I wonder if we attract it by our presence, or if it is always there waiting for the perfect moment to spill out.

It is impossible to say what sequence of events triggers a reaction or tunes into us, searching for answers appears the best way to receive a none reaction because I/ we always seem to be on the back foot when unexplained phenomena present. Am I being arrogant to even think we are considered when the process begins to unfold, it could be that we are just swept along with everything else caught in its path.

So are we dealing with an advanced intelligence or an evolved something that just IS, or is it a mix of many divers' phenomena.

A world graph depicting events would be more revealing than words, but mainstream science would not take the results seriously because there is rarely any physical proof to work with after the magic retracts. Perhaps we place too much faith in science and should create a new Parra-science where the overwhelming volume of interconnected witness accounts has to be considered real evidence.

So where does the Danes Dyke experience fit and why is so hard to explain?

When we entered the small strip of woodland it was just like any other day, Dark Wood is not really attached to the dyke at all, it sits alone between two fields overlooking the road leading out of the Dyke. We both had our cameras switched on and took pictures as we walked. I was using the Nikon P900 and Mary had her Canon. It was easy to navigate our way through the trees, the leaves had fallen and all the vegetation had died back in readiness for winter. I only wish I could have been ready when it happened.

I guess what I'm saying is there wasn't anything on the path that could have snagged my clothing. I remember raising the camera to take a picture and that's when it happened. Just as I was about to take the picture something took hold of my jacket, it touched my right shoulder near the collar and pulled me backwards. A wave of dizziness ran through me as soon as I was touched and whipped round to see who was there.

This was one of those surreal moments, I looked behind me. "Did that really just happen." Mary and the dog were about twenty feet away so it was nothing to do with her. I just stood there looking up and around, there was nothing. Not even a twig close enough to snag my jacket; I was looking for an explanation, that is after all what we do as human beings. I couldn't find one though, not for what had just happened. Describing the sensation of being pulled backwards is harder than it sounds because the feeling was like nothing I have ever felt before. And what were the reasons; if I had taken the picture would it have captured something that I was not supposed to see, or was there a more sinister motive.

It could not have taken more than 6 seconds from lifting the camera to being pulled backwards, I said nothing to Mary and we continued to walk through the wood, in my head I kept saying "Did that really happen, or did I imagine it."

Two things have happened before in that section of wood, the first was in 2015 when I heard a high pitched ringing sound, our granddaughter also heard it. The second time was when me and Mary heard what sounded like huge sheets flapping in the wind. It was not windy and the sound seemed to be right above our heads. On both occasions I immediately switched on my voice recorder hoping for a repeat performance, but the phenomena does perform to order.

Ten to fifteen minutes past and the memory of being pulled backwards had temporarily left my mind, that was until I decided to take another picture. Without warning it happened again, exactly the same feelings as before. Something pulled me backwards and the sensation I felt was nothing short of weird.

Awful would be one way to describe the feeling because for a brief moment I felt a part of something very unnatural. I questioned myself the first time even though I was sure it happened. But now there was no questioning it, it had happened for a second time and I think it was a warning.

Even describing what happened as a feeling may be wrong, it is so difficult to explain but something unnatural connected with me that day in Dark wood. I have wondered if it is something with a cloaking ability that is here all of the time and hovers on the edges of peripheral consciousness.

Or is it a phenomenon that reached out from another reality, that is a scary thought if I dwell on it. Could it really have been some kind of warning, was I close to being pulled through into non existence. Could this even explain where some of the missing people have gone?

The closest thing I can think of to describe the feeling would be that it felt magnetic. If you have ever held two opposing magnets and felt the resistance as you try to push them together you will know the feeling I am trying to describe. But I have no idea how that could pull me backwards, or how I felt it take hold of my jacket. Because it felt like nothing I could recognise, I just know it had some kind of hold on me and is another example of how close we are to something that science cannot even begin to grasp.

I never thought I would ever feel apprehensive about walking alone in Danes Dyke, or on the cliff tops around Bempton and Speeton. But after that day I realised I had been touched by another type of intelligence. Something that might even be around each and every one of us right now.

How to find Danes Dyke:

Danes Dyke is located approx. 2 miles east of Bridlington. By road from Bridlington approach on the B1255 towards Flamborough, following brown road signs to Danes Dyke. Take care on the narrow road to car park. Depart using exit road. Reserve car park: OS Explorer Map 301: Grid ref: TA 215 695. Postcode: YO15 1DU

The nearest railway station is Bridlington (2 miles). Enquiries: 08457 48 49 50. www.nationalrail.co.uk The nearest bus stop is at the reserve entrance on the B1255 Bridlington to Flamborough. EYMS bus route 510 Bridlington to Flamborough. # The UN's 1978 UFO Committee Initiative, a Personal Reminisce

By Peter Robbins

On a quiet Friday afternoon in early October 1977, the Prime Minister of the small Caribbean nation of Grenada made his way to the lectern at the head of the United Nations' General Assembly Hall. In some parallel universe the remarks he was about to make might have shocked those present, but Sir Eric Gairy had long since established himself as someone who took the paranormal seriously, a breach of protocol which violated an unspoken rule among his colleagues in the diplomat corps. For the media though, the fact that the leader of any sovereign nation would make such a statement made his words truly newsworthy. The words in question? "I have myself seen an unidentified flying object, and I have been overwhelmed by what I have seen."

The Prime Minister went on to propose the appointment of a group of experts to define guidelines for a UN study of "the nature and origin of unidentified flying objects and related phenomena, his goal. to see the establishment of a UN agency which would actually monitor UFO activity. It could, "begin modestly with a small committee to make a study." Any such effort, he maintained, should be undertaken because he was convinced that UFOs were "vehicles used by highly intelligent aliens of extra-terrestrial origin." Acknowledging his own predisposition in the matter, Gairy assured the delegates that he "would keep an open mind, taking no "categoric theoretical stand on the question of U.F.O.'s." The next day's New York Times carried the story under the title, "U.N. Hears Call to Debate U.F.O.'s," and reported that the announcement "did not exactly stun the delegates – possibly because Sir Eric was no stranger to such controversies.

In previous visits to the UN "he had spoken about psychic research, and the strange disappearances of ships venturing into the waters of the "Bermuda Triangle" not too far from his own island." But the newspaper's abiding question was, had the PM discussed the subject of UFOs with another witness to the phenomenon, President Jimmy Carter. The two had met the previous month in Washington. Gairy chose not to comment on this, but an unnamed White House official said the subject had indeed been raised with the President. There is no record of how Mr. Carter responded.

Sir Eric's request was the topic of some discussion in the Assembly three days later, the third time in as many years he had asked that such an action be undertaken. No efforts to do so had followed, though Gairy had been inundated with letters from around the world supporting such a measure. The media and a segment of the international scientific community were interested in the matter as well, he added. Such a committee, if established, would have three objectives: to study UFO reports and determine their origin and nature, to disseminate this information, and to work within the United Nations to exchange data with the potential to trigger an informational breakthrough. The Prime Minister also made it clear that his personal interest in the matter was not scientific, but political. The discussion did not result in an initiative, though Grenada chose the moment to issue a series of postage stamps marking their Prime Minister's beliefs, efforts and intentions. The stamps depict the UN General Assembly Building, a SETI radio telescope, anomalous lights above the surface of the Moon, an articulated craft and a glowing red and white UFO, a detail from a 1599 broadside depicting UFOs in the skies over Germany, and an Adamski type craft. The caption on each states, "Research into UFOs," or "Research into unidentified flying objects." On July 7, 1977 the Grenada delegation again called "for open discussions on the very important subject ... a matter of significance at this time for all mankind." The following week, Gairy met with Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to discuss the creation of a steering committee, the purpose of which would be to involve the United Nations in UFO research. Accompanying the Prime Minister at this meeting were noted ufologists Dr. Allen Hynek, Dr. Jacques Vallee, Leonard Stringfield, David Saunders and Claude Poher. Their arguments must have been impressive because the question was placed on the General Assembly's Special Political Committee's agenda for later that year, and it was here that the arc of my life intersected this singular moment in history.

I'd become interested, very interested, in the subject of UFOs in early 1975, and by 1977 had already met and been befriended by the three men who were to become my UFOlogical mentors. They were Budd Hopkins, a fellow artist whose own involvement in the field predated mine by a matter of months, Pete Mazzola, a tough, no nonsense New York City Police detective who also happened to be a crack UFO investigator, and Major (ret) Colman VonKeviczsky, a retired Hungarian Army Staff Officer who had been in charge of that country's military photo reconnaissance and photo analysis divisions during WWII. Coleman's interest in the subject UFOs had begun as a recently naturalized American citizen in 1952 - the day in fact that photographs of UFOs over Washington, D.C. were published in newspapers all over the country and around the world.

A necessary digression: I first met Coleman at the modest flat he shared with his wife Yolanda in the Borough of Queens New York. I lived a subway ride away in Manhattan's Chinatown, but our first contacts were via letter, then the phone. I was glad to accept his invitation to visit and finally meet in person, but at the same time wondered what it would be like to sit down for the first and likely only time with a man, a staff officer in fact, whose country had fought alongside the Nazis during World War II. It was a lot to take in for a Jewish person who knew the story of how his family members were executed by German soldiers during the war. Pioneering UFO researcher and activist or not, these were some of the thoughts going through my mind at I knocked at his door that afternoon. Coleman greeted me warmly with a big smile as he opened the door and ushered me into the living room. I like him immediately Yolanda brought us a selection of small cakes and coffee, and, as if reading my mind, asked me if he might tell me something about himself. Of course, I said, or words to that effect. He began by telling me about his Pre-War years as a film director and his love of film, something I very much shared with him. How effectively the Germans had seduced the Hungarians into an anti-communist pact camouflaging their true intentions of dominating his country in the process. About the awful realization that he and his countrymen had come in on the wrong side, and how, a week or so before the allies moved into Hungary, he and other staff officers we strongly admonished (not quite an order) to defect and leave all behind and, if at all possible, make their way to the American lines; if the Russians captured them., almost certain death awaited. In Coleman's case, he and his first wife and their infant son made it through to the American lines.

Coleman spent the next seven years of his life working through what I considered some serious karma in West Germany where he was employed by an agency that was helping to repatriate Jewish war refugees, and wherever possible, unite them with missing family members. In 1952 he and his family were given permission to immigrate to America, a country that he loved as only disposed people can. Coleman was a devout Catholic, but gently lectured me on the paramount importance of keeping one's religious beliefs and ufo-logical investigations separate from each other, something I already appreciated. In the intervening years, the major's distinguished military background and unique standing in the photographic community had allowed him to develop lucrative consulting contacts with leading camera film manufactures like Agfa, Leica, Kodak and the like, as well as maintain cordial contacts within both and within both the Pentagon and the United Nations. He was the person who first introduced former Secretary General U. Thant to the subject of UFOs in 1967, and the seriousness of their implications, much to the chagrin of the United States government. In fact, the Secretary General was so impressed by the UFO documents Coleman provide, that he made a public to the effect that next to the war in Vietnam, the greatest issue facing the UN was the subject of UFOs.

Shortly thereafter he was visited by two men identifying themselves as representatives of the Central Intelligence Agency who politely but strongly suggested that he re-approach U Thant and inform him that the documentation was suspect, bogus, or false, and that the subject in question was not to be taken seriously. The consequences of not doing so would be to lose his consulting jobs and spend the rest of his life living off of his social security and the modest income he made selling his UFO reports and studies. Much to my delight, he told me he responded by telling the men that "they could go fuck themselves." And following a huge laugh, related that as a result of his insolence, did lose all of his consulting jobs as a consequence and had lived ever since on his social security income, a modest pension, and the sale of his reports and pamphlets.

By 1977 Coleman had gained the ear of Secretary General Waldheim who also grasped the significance and implications of issue, so much so that Waldheim commissioned VonKeviczsky to write and submit an addenda to the official proceedings focused primarily on his ongoing concern that a misidentified UFO might someday set off a shooting war between the Americans and the Soviets, a not inconsequential subtext to the matter at hand.

Though I was still very much a novice in the field, Coleman hired me and journalist friend Antonio Huneus, a Chilean-American journalist who had also developed an interest in the subject, to act as his editors. Antonio was my first real colleague in this work and we were both thrilled with the assignment. I should say here that the word 'hired' was something of a euphemism in this case as neither of us would be paid for our work, but I think we would both have paid Coleman for the opportunity he'd given us.

Over the months which followed Antonio worked diligently to clarify and augment the manuscript he'd presented us with. The paper's contents were important and compelling, but English was very much a third or possibly forth language for the Major and Antonio and I were faced with a world of syntax problems, inverted prepositions, and numerous other grammatical challenges, all of which we dutifully noted in our corrections. Coleman's heavily Hungarian-accented English (which Antonio and I affectionately termed 'Colmanese'), along with his natural pride and stubbornness, tended to guide his textual decisions, and the great majority of our suggestions were politely declined, but always with his warm thanks. Nonetheless the paper was accepted by Secretary Waldheim and my colleague and I were invited to attend the relevant meetings at UN Headquarters that autumn. We remained fast friends until Coleman passed away at the age of eighty-nine a dozen or so years later. Digression concluded.

A day or two prior to the meetings, New York City was hit with a major snowstorm that continued into Monday November 27, the day they were scheduled for. The storm's impact had all but definitely slowed travel around the city, but had hardly halted it, though I'm convinced a goodly number of UN delegates who should have been in attendance used the weather as an excuse to remain home that day. I woke that morning in my downtown loft and dressed for the event in my best and only suit. I was feeling pretty full of myself, and why shouldn't I? As far as I was concerned, history was going to be made that afternoon at the United Nations Secretariat Building. I caught the First Avenue bus in front of my building and about half an hour later exited in front of the United Nations' complex on the East River.

Passing through security was a simple matter back then and I made my way to the General Assembly's cavernous hall where I found an empty seat in the gallery. The scheduled 10:30 meeting was called to order at 11:00 and the text of draft resolution 126 was read into the record. It called for, "The establishment of an agency or department of the United Nations for undertaking, the coordinating and disseminating the results of research into unidentified flying objects and related phenomena."

Cessna

Prime Minister Gairy delivered his opening remarks with eloquence and passion. He spoke of his personal conviction that the matter was of worldwide significance, but caught me completely off guard by immediately (as in his second sentence) veering off into his thoughts on ufology's then hottest case, the sudden, unexplained disappearance of the young Australian pilot Frederick Valentich and his plane only five weeks prior. It had occurred as Valentich was describing the approach of an unidentified flying object to his air traffic controller. Gairy: "The recent report of the abduction of a Cessna aircraft in Australia seemed to be a compelling reason for the United Nations to assume its responsibilities and take a serious look at the UFO phenomenon,"

From where I sat, I could see that he was directing his remark at Australia's representative to the UN and I watched as that man glared back at the Prime Minister in what I could only interpret as straight-faced rage. The flat affect expressions I observed on the faces of the delegates from Guatemala and Greece exemplified those of all the officials assembled in that hall throughout the proceedings, and in a very real sense, I couldn't blame them. Being the United Nations representative carried with it great prestige and numerous perks, and, given the almost universal ridicule attached to the UFO subject, I couldn't imagine that any of them relished the idea of reporting back to their respective governments that they should support Grenada's efforts to establish a UFO study committee.

Prime Minister Gairy cited worldwide statistics on the phenomenon, the genuine interest within areas of the scientific community, the lack of emphasis which the UN placed on such universally important subjects, and the fact that Grenada "... was genuinely concerned about any phenomenon which might interfere with the fulfillment of man's aspirations towards the maintenance of peaceful coexistence." He then read the text of the resolution into the official record. Wellington Friday of the Grenada delegation was the next to speak. He informed the body that the previous year the First International Congress on the UFO Phenomenon (held in Germany) had passed a unanimous resolution supporting Grenada's UFO resolution. By 1978 Dr. Allen Hynek was ufology's leading spokesman. During his remarks informed committee members that the scope and extent of the phenomenon was not generally recognized. More, that it was so strange and foreign to man's terrestrial mode of thought that it was frequently ridiculed by those unacquainted with the facts. Hynek referred to Gallup Poll statistics, the confirmed numbers of sightings worldwide, and the physiological effects manifested by the phenomenon. He told the delegates about trace cases, France's GEPAN group and their ongoing study of UFOs, the compelling need for the involvement of an inter-governmental organization, and how a United Nations sponsored initiative would speed the day when "opinions would be translated into firm scientific knowledge."

Dr. Jacques Vallee followed Dr. Hynek. He observed that a new social movement now existed which was based on the expectation of contact with beings from outer space, a belief which was in many ways an emotional one and not based on fully factual information. Vallee saw three aspects to the subject; its physical manifestation, which should be investigated with the best scientific equipment and personnel available, its psycho-psychological impact on society, and the social belief system being generated worldwide by the expectation of space visitors, a longing which was leading to the creation of new religions and cultural and political concepts, facts which social scientists had taken little notice of. Vallee went on to articulate other problems as well, ones which we might face in the future if the problem continued to be excluded from serious research and investigation, and how only an open exchange of information on an international level could correct the dangerous trends of belief in imminent contact. Dr. Vallee saw such beliefs as an indication of the widening gap between public mystifica-tion and speculation and true scientific inquiry and findings. His final point was that the expectation of contact promoted the concept of political unification on Earth. In this sense the UFO phenomenon was providing an outside focus for human emotions. Whether this ultimately proved to be a negative or positive factor for social change would in great part depend on the way in which these emotions were treated. Such would be the challenges facing the proposed committee.

Army Reserve Captain Lawrence J. Coyne was the next to speak and his first hand account was absolutely riveting. The 1973 incident involved the flight of a United States Army utility helicopter which he had commanded. During its flight from Columbus to Cleveland Ohio, a red-lighted aircraft of undetermined origin approached the helicopter at a high rate of speed and positioned itself directly in front of Coyne's craft. The unknown was fifty to sixty feet in length and of a gray metallic structure. Attempts to establish communication with it were unsuccessful and the helicopter's controls were set to descend at 2,000 feet per minute. Despite this, and much to the anxiety of Coyne and his crew, the copter began to climb at the rate of 1,000 feet per minute. It was 'released,' for lack of a better term, at 3,800 feet.

Captain Coyne was as credible a witness as I had ever heard. He testified that all aboard observed the unknown craft and were fully convinced of its reality. He concluded with that the incident warranted a thorough investigation. A documentary composed of UFO footage narrated by Dr. Hynek was then shown and the meeting was adjourned at 12:45. My parents, who lived in the city at the time, had both taken the afternoon off from their jobs to meet me for lunch and we make our way down to the UN cafeteria. After we had eaten a UN photographer approached us in the rotunda of the Secretariat Building and asked if could take our picture. I still smile when I remember the moment. If you look closely you can see the lit cigarette in my mom's left hand. Yes, smokers were welcome to light up in the UN lobby back then. After lunch they joined me in the General Assembly gallery for the afternoon session which was to be relatively brief. We were in our seats before the scheduled 3:00 start and the meeting was promptly called back to order at 3:45.

Former Astronaut Gordon Cooper had been scheduled to speak next, but his flight to New York had been cancelled due to the storm. At the time Cooper was the most outspoken astronaut regarding the reality of UFOs, and Mr. Friday read his prepared statement into the record, and Gordon Cooper had been prepared not to mince his words. Part of the statement that Mr. Friday read into the record said, "... I believe that these extraterrestrial vehicles and their crews are visiting this planet from other planets, which obviously are a little more technically advanced than we are here on earth. I feel that we need to have a top-level, coordinated program to scientifically collect and analyze data from all over the earth concerning any type of encounter, and to determine how best to interface with these visitors in a friendly fashion. We may first have to show them that we have learned to resolve our problems by peaceful means rather than warfare before we are accepted as fully qualified universal team members." I cannot tell you how amazing it was to hear such blunt, straightforward words read out in the General Assembly, especially when they were coming from one of America's respected, heroic Apollo astronauts.

The final presenter of the session was ufologist and nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman. It was the first time I had heard him speak, my first UFO conference still being several years down the road. Mr. Friedman spoke with authority and conviction, telling the assembly that evidence in favor of visitations by intelligently controlled extraterrestrial vehicles was considerable. He went on to cite some of the vast and varied evidence then available and explained in some detail why truly anomalous UFOs could not possibly be terrestrial craft. He then laid out a series of reasons these other intelligences might have for such visitations, then addressed the question of why they seemed to choose not to make direct contact with us and why the proposed UN initiative was important to all of the representative nations. Some speculation on the number of possible planets which might harbor life followed, as did his thoughts on the implications of contact.

I spoke with Stanton Friedman some years back about his memories of that afternoon. He told me that he'd wished Dr. Hynek had been more assertive and shown more leadership that day, and that Sir Eric had been less associated with all other things strange. Friedman felt sure that a significant reason the meetings received so little press coverage was that that very morning a deranged former San Francisco city supervisor had murdered San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and City Supervisor Harvey Milk, a story that dominated the next day's news. The floor was then relinquished to Mr. Friday who invited members to make suggestions and recommendations concerning the draft resolution. Mr. Tubman of Liberia requested that the statements made by the members of Grenada's delegation be reproduced and distributed for further study. A Miss Harden of the United Kingdom asked what costs might be attached to such an action. None were foreseen (for the transcriptions) and the request made by the Delegation from Liberia was approved. The meeting was adjourned late that afternoon and I returned home to watch the news TV coverage of the murders in San Francisco, and not a word on the historic events I had witnessed only hours earlier. Antonio Huneeus and I were of course intent on following developments in the Grenada resolution story, but there would be very little to follow in the weeks and months to come. The tiny country's efforts to establish a UN-UFO study program were left to languish in committee and died a quiet death there the following year. A brief piece in the Christmas 1978 edition of The New York Times covered the initiative's demise with characteristic condescension: "The Assembly this year considered 129 topics, among which one of the few fresh items was a proposal by Grenada for a United Nations agency to investigate unidentified flying objects. This was deftly disposed of by an invitation to members to exchange data if they wished."

Less than four months later, while Prime Minister Gairy was back in New York on UN business, his government was overthrown in a coup staged by Maurice Bishop, a lifelong political opponent, outspoken admirer of Che Guevara, and the leader of Grenada's longtime leftist opposition. Gairy was attacked as a "criminal dictator" in rebel radio broadcasts and Bishop demanded his extradition to Grenada. Our government refused to do so however, and the former Prime Minister remained in exile until October 1983 when President Reagan, who, like Sir Eric, took the subject of UFOs very seriously, ordered the invasion of the island nation and deposed Bishop's successor. Despite the Grenada delegation's failure to successfully implement Agenda Item 126, my first serious lesson in the human and political implications which UFOs represented on the world scene remain one of the most valuable I've learned in all my intervening years in the field. I consider myself fortunate to have played some small part in those proceedings and have done my best to remember and apply that lesson in the professional challenges I've faced since then. in the intervening years.

HOW I BECAME AN INCURABLE CONSPIRACY ADDICT

By WILL CHAMPION

First of all, Who IS Will Champion?

By trade, I'm now an American Thriller Writer and Key-note Speaker, and I've been murdering Mediocrity since Day One! Before that, a Paramedic, and then a Sovereignty Law Consultant and Civil Case Litigator. But I am first, foremost, and always an American Patriot. I love the U.S.A. – it's literally in my DNA. And like millions of Americans, I'm fed-up with the corporate-run, Orwellian monstrosity that's been masquerading as our Government, particularly since 9/11 which, I assure you, was without question an inside job.

How do I know that's true? I'm acquainted with certain details, testimonies, and material evidence that came to light as a result of my most dangerous excursion into Big Brother's Court System. In fact, I included the Government's role in this heinous plot in THE DREAMLAND FILES...my chosen means of blasting that truth out to the world. And that's not all...

If you think uncovering the Government's biggest, dirtiest, and best-kept secrets and exposing the lies might be a bit dangerous, it is! You see, sufficient knowledge (combined with the will to act on it) can change the course of an individual's life, and just as easily change the current power structure – even the course of History, itself! That's why numerous world leaders and other public figures – even a number of Patriots and writers like ME – have been MURDERED...they've uncovered portions of this on-going forbidden history and attempted to expose them. But there's one thing this corrupt Globalist Government hasn't counted on: their attempts to silence truth and quash dissent are fast creating more enemies than even they can dispose of! Now are you ready to take a ride? Then buckle-up, and I'll take you back to when my story began...

In the late 1960's, my Hometown of Roswell, New Mexico, was a quiet, peaceful little community in the South-western United States of about 35 thousand or so pretty nice folks, and a couple of old soreheads (but I loved it!) People there worked hard, and played just as hard. Most of the kids knew each other and generally got along. Our main activities after the high school and college football and basketball seasons were over in the Spring consisted of cruising up and down Main Street in our cars 'till well past Midnight...fooling around like typical teenagers did most anywhere else. Or, driving out to Bottomless Lakes State Park East of town to swim in the deep, salty lakes. But there was one thing that set Roswell apart from all other small towns: the legendary UFO Crash the locals knew had occurred in the region in 1947.

Heck, everybody in town knew about it. They weren't stupid. They weren't crazy. And nobody stood to make a dime off it. It was probably the best-kept secret in the country until Stanton Friedman and a number of other UFO Researchers started blowing the lid off the story in 1992. I was there. I lived it all. So I suppose you might say that qualifies me to be a bona fide "RoswAlien"!

So I'm all grown-up now (well, sort of!) And I invite you to ride shotgun with me on a fascinating journey of mystery and intrigue, and History that's such a threat to the current World Paradigm it's been erased from the History Books that – for at least some UFO and paranormal enthusiasts – will turn your entire world-view upside-down! ordinary to the far side of the fantastic! Along the way, we'll glimpse into our distant past and examine the state of our current affairs from a unique historical and legal perspective to arrive at truth, and gain a better understanding of ourselves and our place in the universe. And help us determine the future we choose to create. At the journey's end, you will come to question everything you've ever been taught to believe! Along the way, we'll glimpse into our distant past, and examine the state of our current affairs from a unique perspective to arrive at some hidden truths, and gain a better understanding of ourselves and our place in the universe. And, help us determine the future we choose to create. At the journey's end, you may come to question everything you've ever been taught to believe in.

NOW LET'S HAVE A LOOK AT THE 1947 ROSWELL FLYING SAUCER CRASH...

By now most of you already know this story. But for the benefit of those who don't, here's a brief Survey of The Roswell Incident – 101, with a few twists not generally known, courtesy of numerous resources I've deemed credible during the course of my own research:

A small Flying Disc crashed on the Foster Ranch near the village of Corona, New Mexico, some 75 miles Northwest of Roswell the Fourth of July weekend in 1947 during a violent night-time thunderstorm. Military insiders recount that it was shot down by an experimental jet aircraft from nearby White Sands Proving Grounds, using an impulse-type weapon under development that disabled its electronic controls and caused it to crash. Days later, a second spacecraft with delta-wings was subsequently shot down on the prairie about 40 miles North of Roswell, while on a mission to locate and recover parts and any survivors of that crash. A third such craft went down in the same time-frame on the Plains of San Augustin, where – as if by coincidence - the VERY LARGE ARRAY is now located...

From the crash near Corona, a few live alien beings, or EBE's (Extra-terrestrial Biologic Entities) that fit the descriptions of the small Gray Aliens the Military Classifies as "Type 1's", and the corpses from the ships were transported along with the wreckage under the tightest security conditions to the nearest military hospital at Roswell Army Air Field, Roswell, New Mexico. At the time, R.A.A.F. was the Home Base of the most elite airborne unit in the world, the 509th Bombardment Group - the world's first and only airborne bombing unit equipped for nuclear weapons delivery. With such awesome responsibilities, personnel didn't get assigned to this elite outfit for being dimwits. They had to be the brightest, most capable, and most trustworthy of the Army's very best...

Building 84 at R.A.A.F. - a B-29 hangar known also as P-3 - the wreckage was catalogued and crated, then the bulk of it was loaded aboard B-29 bombers and flown out to various U.S. Military installations; Ft. Worth and Ft. Bliss in Texas, Los Alamos, New Mexico, Ft. Riley, Kansas, and Wright Airfield in Dayton, Ohio.

Pieces of the wreckage were recovered by a special team led by Maj. Jessie A. Marcel - head of Intelligence at R.A.A.F. - consisting of Col. Blanchard and his Superior, Brig. General Roger Ramey, the C.O. of Carswell A.A.F. in Ft. Worth, Texas. These men later handled some of the material the morning of Tuesday, July 8, which included a control panel imprinted with placements for small pilots having six digits on their hands. There were also extremely thin yet incredibly strong sheets of material resembling metal foil that couldn't be damaged by any means, and yet unfolded back to their original size and shape without creases when crumpled-up. Plus, long structural pieces etched with strange markings that could have been part numbers, which none of these Military Officers could identify.

That was also the day Col. Blanchard directed Base Public Information Officer Lt. Walter Haut to compose a press release to the local Newspapers, The Roswell Daily Record and The Morning Dispatch, and local radio stations KGFL and KSWS. And it was local Reporter Frank Joyce's eloquent voice that announced to the world the Army had finally captured a real "Flying Saucer"!

But General Ramey recanted the story the following morning claiming that somehow, these Officers - arguably some of the best and brightest in the country - had all been mistaken, and the debris was actually that of, quote: "a harmless, high-altitude weather balloon, not a grounded flying disc". Just about everybody now knows that was a crock!

Most people in the know swore an oath of secrecy in the name 'National Security' to never reveal anything about this extraordinary event under threat of reprisals that included "The Big M" - MURDER. But I got to know a few who realized the significance of this event, and learned about stuff the Government does NOT want us to know, like things I once thought only existed in dreams - or nightmares! Hence, an incurable Conspiracy Addict was born. But it would be several years before I could go deep into the matrix...

It all began in the year 2001 when, of necessity (though I knew practically nothing at all about Law and Procedure and Court Litigation) I had to become a crack-shot at American Common Law (that's where the REAL power is!) - - and fast! From the best of the best I learned to properly apply an extremely aggressive style of Case Litigation against the opposition - LEGAL BATTLEFILED TACTICS most often only known by the Highest-ranking Judges....which made that a risky, if not downright DANGEROUS business! Those courtroom excursions became my crucible. And that's when I began seeing alarming patterns that even in my wildest imagination I could never have dreamed-up. And yet they are absolutely true. As a result, I'm now thoroughly qualified to write and tell about what I know, like the Government's biggest, dirtiest, and best-kept secrets...and how it affects US ALL!

During my live presentations, I often emphasize that there's been a Secret War going on between War-Lords and Serfs for domination, conquest, and submission to ultimate control that taken thousands of years to plan and prosecute. It's a war of masquerades, high-crimes, deceit, betrayals, and swindles of vast fortunes in which, until quite recently, the end seemed perilously near.

A most effective weapon used by the War-Lords is CODIFIED LAW and its enforcement. And I came to learn that the Laws enforced in our Western Court System can be traced all the way back to ancient Mesopotamia: Hammurabi's Law Code, which deals in large part with CONTRACTS - - and this Law may have extra-terrestrial origins!! There simply isn't enough time to delve into that here, perhaps it's a topic for a future article. Those interested in learning all about Codified Law and how it affects our everyday lives can find a treasure trove of secret information long-suppressed by the world's Controlling Elite in my e-book, THE DREAMLAND FILES. But let's have a closer look at our distant past...

So-called "primitive" cultures throughout the world depicted mankind's extra-terrestrial origins. In fact, History proves that over the ages, this planet's been visited countless times by beings NOT of this Earth. And some of their modern-day Humanoid descendants - 'Money Lords' - Occult Masters of their own little Universe here on Earth. And the offspring of these unseen Conspirators of long ago are now the world's only Trillionaires!

They have conspired to create a tangled web of the most evil conspiracies, lies, and cover-ups in history, plotted today by a Secret Cabal: the Masters of Money known as The ILLUMINATI - - a secret society of ruthless Merchant Bankers and Big-Businessmen against humanity, bent on total world domination by first bringing the U.S.A. completely to its knees!

Members of this secret fraternity believe they've been Divinely chosen, and thus it's their sacred right - their destiny - to gain total control over the entire world, its resources, and the entire population. To do this, they've secretly imbedded its members in all the governments on Earth that they might rule the world as Kings.

And now through deceit, oppression, intimidation, fear, and secrecy...the Illuminati are the only ones who know in advance and understand the things that are really going on! Secrecy gives them power and control. The principle's simple, yet highly effective: the more secrets you keep from others, the more power you hold over them...

Today, members of this Secret Society and other conspiratorial organizations comprise the Shadow Government - the unelected secret council of government behind the Government. They're the Ultimate Ruling Class...the Super-Rich...the Globalist backers of THE NEW WORLD ORDER. Altogether, the Illuminati are the most dangerous, devious, and ruthlessly ambitious men and women on the planet. They've rigged everything in the world so they always win, and they literally make bloody fortunes from debt and death. So despite their pretence of being so 'enlightened', they actually promote Darkness here on Earth!

Their ultimate goal is to abolish the sovereignty of all the nations and establish one centralized, global government to rule over all - The New World Order. To the Illuminati, there is only one operating principle, their Golden Rule: THOSE THAT OWN THE GOLD MAKE THE RULES!

NOW LET'S GO BACK IN TIME FOR A BIT, AND TRACE THEIR EVOLUTION...

For thousands of years the Dogon people of Africa have believed in strange beings - - some born with tails (Reptilians?) - came from the stars in wondrous flying machines. They mapped all the planets of our solar system even though they've never had telescopes. And their legends included stories about other-worldly beings...

Now if one considers the extra-terrestrial beings depicted in historical recordings made by people inhabiting other parts of the world, it's plain to see many other cultures all over the planet have always known people from the Stars came to Earth! And not all of them were humanoid. Some had Reptilian traits!

Now like most Westerners, I was at first shocked to learn that numerous ancient SUMERIAN and EGYPTIAN glyphs still exist that depict the coming of these Space travelers to Earth, whereupon they flew about in winged 'Sky Chambers' that rose straight up into the air or Space! One can see it was easy for our ancient ancestors to readily accept them as Gods!

GODS, and we'll have a closer look at such strange otherworldly beings shortly...

MEANWHILE, LET'S GO BACK IN TIME TO 1920, 30, and 40's GERMANY, AND MEET A GROUP OF EXTRAORDINARY WOMEN WHO WOULD ULTIMATELY CHANGE THE COURSE OF HISTORY...AND PRACTICALLY NO ONE KNOWS THEIR NAMES:

Maria Orsic

The Vril Society was formed by a group of 5 beautiful and charming female psychic mediums led by the Thule Society medium, MARIA ORSIC. It seems that Maria Orsic had been getting messages in an unknown language and couldn't transcribe them, so began meeting with key members of the Thule Society (all strikingly beautiful women who had very long hair, which they came to believe served as antennae that greatly enhanced their abilities as psychic mediums!) Maria became close with another medium named Sigrun, a name related to Sigrune, a Valkyrie and one of Wotan's nine daughters in Norse legend.

The two formed their own group and called it The Vril Society, which combined the political ideals of the Order of the Illuminati with the mysticisms of the Hindus, Persians, Sumerians, Assyrians, and to a lesser extent, Christian mystics. And as it turns out, Accordingly, the messages were coming from a being from the star Aldebaran, which has two planets which form the 'Sumerian Empire'. they purportedly were receiving communications from Aryan aliens living on Alpha Centauri, in the Aldebaran system. Allegedly, these aliens had visited Earth and settled in ancient Sumeria, and the word Vril was formed from the ancient

Sumerian word "Vri-II" ("like god or "God-like".)

The Book of Genesis in the Christian Bible refers to these giant warrior-adventurers as the Nephilim, a term which means, 'Those who were cast down'. Even today certain modern dictionaries describe the Nephilim as ancient Heroes - 'Men of Renown' - who were supposedly the products of sexual unions between 'Heavenly beings' and Human females. These giants found the Earthly daughters to be beautiful, and took them as mates.

Their offspring were said to have been very large beings, possessing by comparison with our present short life-spans great length of life - and extremely advanced mental and intuitive abilities. THEY WERE THE DEMI-

It seems Maria and the others were given information from these alien beings about a Divine force called Vril Energy - which could be described as an aether stream that could be transformed into a physical force...which, if you wield it, makes you look similar to a God! Think on that - - it will relate to something even more profound, as you will see in a few minutes...

One day, Maria suddenly went into a trance and she caught telepathic information in a language that was completely foreign to her. She later wrote many texts in these two mysterious languages. According to her, these telepathic messages were transmitted from an Aryan God-Man from Aldebaran...

After a time, Maria and the other Vril women collaborated with men from another Secret Society who recognized these strange writings. And it turns out that the transmitted information contained very precise technical details to build...a flying disc!

The Thule Society financed the construction of a prototype in 1922. It was tested for 2 years then dismantled and stored in the workshops of Messerschmidt in Augsburg. The craft was presented to Hitler in 1934, and a second disc-shaped flying machine was built, utilizing an electromagnetic antigravity propulsion system...Vril Energy?!

Prior to WW II, a fleet of similar crafts had been constructed for military purposes: The HANNEBU II and III, but none of them were suitable for aerial combat. However, in 1939 a German aircraft carrier and a fleet of more than a hundred German submarines sailed to Antarctica and disappeared in bases the Germans had built there, and stored several of these flying saucers, spare parts, and a lot of archives of the Vril Society. We now know some Hannebu's were about 75 feet in diameter, could fly and levitate, and would hold a crew of eight. Their speed was tremendous, and they were equipped with two LASER cannons (probably the KSK which could penetrate 4-inch thick armour plating) mounted on rotating turrets...and had the ability to fly in space! The Vril-Hannebu Series continued all the way up to Vril-9...and supposedly every one flight tested by the Vril women! And in 1944, American Intelligence managed to photograph a Vril-7 taking off from Prague.

This model was being tested for the first time by Sigrun. Hitler & Himmler were shown photos of the craft when it returned. The outer coating of the Vril-7 craft was worn, damaged, and burnt in many places, as if it had travelled through space for more than a century. So apparently, the flight test was a success. And in March 1945, flying discs Vril-7 and a Vril-8 (named Odin) took off from Brandenburg after the entire field had been blown-up, with all of the Vril women on board. Neither Maria Orsic nor any of the other Vril women were ever found – they had suddenly disappeared from the face of the Earth. There is no doubt that the intended destination was Aldebaran. Which brings us to the topic of Official Government disclosure that UFO's actually exist...

It is first necessary to understand and remember well this disturbing reality: THE ROLE OF GOVERNING THE MASSES HAS BEEN HANDED OVER TO A HANDFUL THE WORLD'S RICHEST BANKERS, FINANCIERS, AND BIG-BUSINESSMEN. THEY ARE NOW THE GOVERNMENT... PLAIN AND SIMPLE. AND GIVEN THAT...

MILITARY-INDUSTRIAL COMPLEX GIANT LOCKHEED (NOW A DIVISION OF THE OFFICIAL GOVERNMENT) ADMITS BLACK-BUDGET GOVERNMENT SPACE TRAVEL: HOW IS IT DONE?

By applying fantastic technologies to something called "quantum entanglement!" The idea is extremely fascinating, and challenges what we once believed about the known scientific laws of the universe we live in. But simply put, it means "Everything in the universe is interconnected with everything else!" Einstein referred to this apparent relationship as, "spooky action at a distance."

Researchers have taken quantum entanglement out of theoretical physics, and placed into the category verified phenomena. Want proof?

An experiment by the Griffith University's Centre for Quantum Dynamics, (conducted by Professor Howard Wiseman and his team of researchers at the University of Tokyo) recently published a paper in the scientific journal, Nature Communications, confirming what Einstein observed but could not quantify: the non-local collapse of a particle's wave function!

Now, I'm no physicist. I'm a writer. And I don't know how these researchers did this, but they split a single photon between two laboratories to test whether measurement of it in one laboratory would actually cause a change in the local quantum state in the other laboratory some distance away. And they were able to verify the entanglement of the split single photon.

Other researchers have since replicated this experiment numerous times, with results of entanglement seen at kilometres of distance. They concluded that Space is just a construct that gives the illusion that there are separate objects.

This phenomenon seems to verify that everything is indeed connected, and that everything in the universe is one. In other words, everything everywhere is all "touching." So either we are able to observe the transfer of "information" at a speed far greater than the speed of light...or even better, something completely instantaneous!

And, if it holds true that all points in space are connected (or, entangled) that means vast distances between places are simply an illusion...a profound conclusion that has been shrouded in secrecy!

WHICH BRINGS US TO SOME STARTLING REVELATIONS ON SPACE TRAVEL BY AN AEROSPACE EXECUTIVE (A GOVERNMENT AGENT):

Ben Rich (Image on bottom right of opposite page) was the Director of the Lockheed-Martin Skunkworks, operating at Area 51 from 1975-1991. He's been called the Father of Stealth, having overseen the development of the stealth fighter jet, the F-117A Nighthawk. Before his death, he made several shocking public statements about the reality of UFOs and extra-terrestrials. He said:

"We already have the means to travel among the stars but these technologies are locked up in black projects, and it would take an act of God to ever get them out to benefit humanity...

Anything you can imagine, we already know how to do it. We now have technology to take ET home. No it won't take someone's lifetime to do it. There was an error in [Einstein's] equations. We know what it was. We now have the capability to travel to the stars...

We have things out there that are literally out of this world, better than Star Trek or what you see in the movies...

There are two types of UFOs — the ones we build and the UN-FUNDED ones 'they' build." Emphasis on the word, UN-FUNDED! Take a moment and think on THAT!!

So where does Quantum Entanglement come in? Is it the same "spooky action at a distance" Einstein seemed baffled by? The same Vril Energy Maria Orsic learned to master...and Nikola Tesla?

Ben Rich was asked how UFO propulsion worked, and he said, "Let me ask you. How does ESP work?" The questioner responded with, "All points in time and space are connected?" Rich then said, "That's how it works!"

Interesting notion to think about, isn't it? Maybe the vast distances that exist between planets, solar systems and more isn't really as much of a barrier as we have been told it is!

In a video interview with Ben Rich approximately 10 days before he died he said: "We have things out in the desert that are fifty years beyond what you can comprehend. They have about forty five hundred people at the Lockheed Skunkworks. What have they been doing for the last eighteen or twenty years? They're building something."

These are just a few examples of countless verified statements regarding UFOs and extra-terrestrials from people who have occupied the highest positions possible within the government, military, academia, and politics. When you put all of those statements together with all of the previously Classified documentation that have been released over the past few years, it paints a startling picture:

As a result of Ben Rich's very public admissions, it's no longer a far-fetched "theory": there exists a secret Black-Budget Space Program that has reverse-engineered and replicated Extra-terrestrial Technologies...primarily used for military and control purposes! How's THAT for Official Government Disclosure?! And it may be a just a small part of another, more ambitious agenda for total world domination...

SO, WHAT DO WE DO NOW ABOUT THIS GIANT CORPORATOCRACY THAT HAS RISEN TO POWER SINCE 9/11/2001?

In Law - and quite often in life - the worst thing you can do is nothing: SILENCE IS CONSENT. So for starters, put the Kool-Aid down, get up off the couch, and get involved! Start at the grass-roots level and DO things that make a difference in your local community, no matter how insignificant they may seem — it all adds up. WE are the 99% - so don't be afraid to start a MOVEMENT. AND of course, be sure and download your copy of THE DREAMLAND FILES. Read it, then tell everyone you know about it. ## Pascagoula-The Closest Encounter

On October 11th, 1973 nineteen year old Calvin Parker and his friend forty two year old Charles Hickson were spending a frustrating evening fishing on the Pascagoula River in Mississippi. Both men loved to fish but tonight's fishing trip would turn out to be one they would never forget. In the early evening both men were startled when a strange craft descended and hovered a few feet above the ground and just a few yards from their location.

Before they had any chance to run an opening appeared in this craft and out 'floated' three humanoid creatures. Both men were absolutely terrified when these creatures grabbed them and took them aboard the craft. On the craft both men were subjected to an examination and at one point they were so terrified as they believed they were about to die.

Minutes later both Calvin Parker and Charles Hickson were deposited back on the riverbank and the craft departed. Taking off in their car the two terrified witnesses eventually located a public telephone box and phoned the local sheriff. A short time later they were being interviewed at their local sheriff's office. These two disorientated witnesses told their story of their close encounter and abduction by these strange creatures.

The next day all hell was let loose as the press descended on this unsuspecting Mississippi town. Calvin Parker, seriously disturbed by these events, has largely remained in the background without ever detailing the full account of what happened that night, how it affected him and his life, and other close encounters he has experienced down the years.

Now, for the first time, Calvin Parker tells his story in full. This book, Pascagoula – The Closest Encounter, tells the story of one of the classic close encounters currently on record. This book features for the first time the full transcript of Calvin Parker's hypnotic regression session with the late Budd Hopkins, one of the world's foremost researchers of this phenomena. The manuscript is also packed full of documents, newspaper cuttings and photographs old and new.
